Some 50,000 homes affected

Faulty voltage line blamed in blackout

A faulty high voltage electrical transmission line has been blamed for knocking out power in approximately 50,000 area homes Monday afternoon.

Homes in Fayette, Greene and Highland counties were affected for about an hour when a substation was put out of commission, officials at the Dayton Power and Light Co. said.

Power was restored to nearly all the communities involved within an hour following the massive outage.

But the village of Jeffersonville in Fayette County was without power for about five hours. The Dayton Power and Light Co. restored service to the 2,000 homes in Jeffersonville at 9:32 p.m. Monday.

"We still don't know what happened," a Dayton Power and Light Co.

spokesman said. "It may be that a switch burned out."

A Dayton Power and Light Co. official said that in all about 150,000 persons were affected by the outage.

"They all were cold," a company spokesman said. "Even gas furnaces need an electric fan to push the warm air."

Temperatures in the Washington C.H. area hovered around the freezing mark during the day and dropped as it grew dark.

More than 10 per cent of the company's customers were affected, officials of the utility company said.

The most homes affected were in Washington C.H. Other towns and cities affected included Jamestown, Shawnee Lake and Cedarville in Greene County, Jeffersonville in Fayette County, Sabina in Clinton County and Greenfield and Leesburg in Highland County.

The Robinson Road substation in Washington C.H. was knocked out at 4:04 p.m. when an unidentified problem developed in a 69,000-volt transmission line. Power to all the blacked-out communities except Jeffersonville was restored by 5:10 p.m.

Dayton Power and Light Co. workers rerouted transmission lines around the substation to return power to the affected areas. Workmen's efforts were hampered in Jeffersonville because the power lines were off the insulators, an official said.

Jerry Morgan, a Dayton Power and Light Co. representative in Dayton, explained that a faulty conductor on a high-voltage line just outside Jeffersonville was responsible for the outage. He said a 69,000 volt cable fell to the ground shorting out the Washington C.H. substation. He had no firm explanation for the condition of the conductor but said it had apparently been damaged by lightning, ice or a hunter's errant shot.

The outage of the Robinson Road substation in turn caused an overload on other stations, and the fuses in surrounding stations blew out in succession. There is a safeguard in each substation to prevent such a "domino effect," he said, but they are not completely dependable in wet or icy weather.

Morgan noted that the company was "lucky" the outage occurred when it did. Crews normally end their work day at 4:30 p.m., and if the failure had happened an hour later, power could not have been restored as quickly, he explained.

Several downtown Washington C.H. businesses closed early when the outage left employees sitting in the dark in front of useless electrical equipment. Their rejoicing may have been short lived, however, because the failure of traffic signals snarled downtown traffic.

Asked whether the more than 100,000 residents affected could expect to receive a "disrupted service rebate" on their next electrical bill, Morgan said they probably deserved it—but were also unlikely to get it.

ANOTHER AWARD WINNER — The Miami Trace High School Betty Crocker Family Leader of Tomorrow was recently announced as being senior Steven D. Paisley

In Betty Crocker contests here

Male domination continues

By GEOFF MAVIS
Record-Herald Staff Writer

The final chapter in the annals of the male domination of the Betty Crocker Family Leader of Tomorrow award in Fayette County high schools can now be written.

Miami Trace High School senior Steven D. Paisley, son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Paisley, 10752 Allen Road, has now joined Washington High School senior Andy Merritt as a representative in the state finals. It was also learned Monday that Paisley is one of the top 25 finalists in the Betty Crocker competition for State Leader of Tomorrow award.

Paisley, who maintains a 3.92 average and is a semi-finalist in the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test, scored higher than 44 of his fellow classmates on the Betty Crocker exam. If he becomes a state winner, he will be furnished with an all-expense paid tour of Washington D.C.

Ranking fifth out of 243 seniors, Paisley is interested in all of his current high school courses, though future school requirements do not look so desirable. "I'm taking English composition next semester, and not looking forward to it," said the 17-year-old potential pharmacy major at Ohio Northern University, Ada.

Paisley enjoys photography as a hobby, using his talents to help in the production of the Miami Trace High School yearbook and the Miami Tracer page published in the Record-Herald. He maintains a darkroom in the basement of his brother's home.

A devotee of hiking, the former member of the Boy Scout Order of the Arrow has lately been too busy with other pursuits to participate in this pastime. However, last summer provided him with an opportunity to practice the sport as he travelled with 30 other Miami Trace High School students on a geographical, historical, and "general learning experience" trip of the southwestern states. The journey lasted 22 days, and one of the most important bits of knowledge gained by Paisley was "how to get along with 15 other people in one van."

It would appear that one of the most important ingredients of a Betty Crocker award winner would be a high proficiency in cooking. Luckily, such knowledge is not a prerequisite for the test-taking. If it were the case, perhaps more girls would have secured first place in the two high school competitions.

But for Paisley, culinary requirements would have cooked his goose. "When forced to fix my own meals at home, I usually live on peanut butter," he stated.

Patty Hearst trial jurors questioned

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst's long-awaited trial for bank robbery was to begin today under tight security, with jury selection likely to focus on attitudes toward kidnap victims, radicals and the wealthy.

Miss Hearst, meanwhile, was described by one of her attorneys, Albert Johnson, as "apprehensive as anyone in her position would be" as the trial approached.

Authorities said all spectators would be required to pass through a metal detector similar to those used at airports. As in all pretrial hearings, federal marshals were ordered stationed at every entrance to the 19th floor courtroom and to patrol the aisles inside.

The stage was set Monday when opposing attorneys submitted lengthy lists of proposed questions for prospective jurors to U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter. Following standard federal procedure, Carter, instead of the lawyers, will question potential jurors.

Miss Hearst, 21-year-old daughter of newspaper executive Randolph Hearst, was kidnapped by the Symbionese Liberation Army Feb. 4, 1974, and later proclaimed allegiance to the tiny band of terrorists. She was charged with helping the SLA rob a bank here in April 1974.

She was arrested here last Sept. 18 after a nationwide hunt.

The defense contends she was forced to make a tape saying she had joined the SLA and another recording admitting she robbed the bank of her own free will.

CANDLELIGHT LAW ENFORCEMENT — The power failure Washington C. H. and surrounding areas experienced late Monday afternoon didn't make law enforcement anymore romantic when officers of the city police department were forced to work by candlelight. However, they admitted it was a change of pace. Pictured are police jailer-dispatchers Steve Deere (foreground) and Mike Taylor.

Position prompted by request regarding programs for elderly

Commissioners express reluctance over accepting federal funding

BY GEORGE MALEK

The Fayette County Board of Commissioners explained Monday its reluctance to accept many types of federally funded programs. Comments by the commissioners prompted by a request to consider accepting federal funds for elderly residents.

While the commissioners stressed the point that they were not opposed to assisting Fayette County's elderly residents, they were opposed to programs for which federal funds rapidly diminish and local taxpayers are expected to assume the burden of continuing operation.

Representatives of the Central Ohio Area Agency on Aging, including two local ministers, met with the commissioners concerning the future of programs for the elderly in Fayette County.

At present, all federally funded programs for the elderly are administered by non-governmental organizations, and Mrs. Ardath H. Lynch, director of the Central Ohio Area Agency on Aging, asked how the commissioners would feel about receiving federal grant money directly and becoming responsible for the operation of programs.

On the surface, this would appear to be an offer "right up the commissioners' alley." They have often complained about "area" and "regional" planning groups which erode the local control of Fayette County program. Mrs. Lynch appealed to the commissioners sense of independence when she suggested that the money might be sent directly from the state office to the county commissioners for implementation of programs which they felt were best suited to the residents of Fayette County.

Presently, the state receives federal monies and disperses them to the state's 13 area agencies, Mrs. Lynch said. Fayette County is in an eight-county area which includes Franklin, Licking, Delaware, Fairfield, Pickaway, Madison and Union counties. The area agency then contracts with local organizations to provide services for Fayette County's elderly residents.

Despite the commissioners desire to have greater control over activities in Fayette County, they were strongly opposed to accepting responsibility for the programs. Commissioner Robert Mace gently presented the commissioners position by saying that the board was "cautious" when it knew funds for such programs were to gradually decline in coming years. He cited the Help Anonymous program, the federal funding for which is gradually decreased over a three-year period. The local community is expected to gradually accept financial responsibility.

Commissioner J. Herbert Perrill was more vocal in saying the same thing. Counties can actually "go broke" accepting funds, he said. Once the program is in operation and the federal funds disappear, the county is pressured into accepting financial responsibility, he said. This increases the local tax burden while federal taxes also continue to climb, Perrill added.

The least outspoken of the county commissioners, Ray Warner, echoed the same sentiments. He noted that there is a forceful push to cut federal spending currently in progress. This may well result in curtailment of funding for many of these programs. When these federal monies are withdrawn, the county just won't be able to finance the programs, he said. He concluded with emphasis that the county commissioners being offered administrative responsibility for these programs now is in itself evidence that federal funding is about to decline.

All three county commissioners agreed that they would not be able to continue many of the programs when federal support was withdrawn. They added that they would prefer the programs were never initiated than see them vanish when the money was gone.

The Rev. Ralph Wolford, chairman of the governing board of the Fayette County Community Action Commission, was annoyed with the commissioners' attitude. He said he felt as a taxpayer that the county should see to it that it received its fair share of the federal tax money paid by its residents. He cited the fact that the Meals on Wheels program operated through First Baptist Church was originally funded for only six months, but has been in operation for more than two years.

He said he was reluctant to initiate a program which would operate for only a few months. However, due to the success of the program, funding has continued, he said. Rev. Wolford indicated that even if the program's funding were to stop immediately, the efforts of the past two years would completely justify its existence. He obviously felt it was better to have a program for even a short time than to refuse funds offered to initiate the project.

The commissioners responded that in theory this might be the case. They noted, however, that they would find it extremely difficult to inform several hundred persons that there simply was no money available to continue a program upon which they had come to depend. Public pressure might often result in continuation of programs which the county really couldn't afford they said.

Property tax proposal attacked

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State lawmakers, determined to do something about skyrocketing property taxes, have been accused of plunging "into a mad rush to escape rate taxpayers and find a scapegoat for past government errors."

The charge came Monday night from a varsity lobbying team of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, incensed about a proposed constitutional amendment to establish a special lower tax rate for owner-occupied homesteads.

Ronald F. Budzik, chairman of the chamber's subcommittee on real property taxation and manager of state and local taxes for the Mead Corp., Dayton, testified before the Senate Ways and Means Committee.

He and other Columbus-based chamber lobbyists charged that the amendment would destroy "one of the finest systems of real property taxation in the nation, and effectively end any hope that Ohio can reverse the decline in its manufacturing jobs and tax base."

Sen. John T. McCormack, D-31 Euclid, the amendment sponsor, denied Budzik's allegation that business and industry are being singled

No Saturday deliveries included

Postal service cutbacks seen without more funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service says it will have to cut back on some services, including Saturday mail delivery, unless Congress is willing to back the mails with the taxpayers' cash.

"We cannot continue to operate as now structured without additional appropriations from Congress," Richard F. Gould, the service's top financial officer, said Monday.

Gould commented before the Senate Post Office Committee opened hearings today on the financial situation of the Postal Service.

Postal Service officials are expected to warn the committee that failure to offer new subsidies will force an end of Saturday delivery and other service such as special delivery.

The committee is taking up a bill by

Chairman Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., to double the Postal Service's $1.5-billion annual subsidy over the next three years.

When Congress reorganized the old Post Office Department into the Postal Service in 1971, one of the goals for the new agency was financial self-sufficiency. The law provided for phasing out of subsidies and empowered the Postal Service to manage its own finances independently of Congress.

But the Postal Service has lost money every year since then. Last fiscal year, the deficit was a record $989 million and the Postal Service expects to lose $1.5 billion in the current fiscal year that ends June 30.

Despite some economy measures already taken, "we face the prospect of never having revenues in balance with our costs," said Gould, senior assistant postmaster general for finance.

Although the Postal Service increased the cost of mailing a first-class letter from 10 to 13 cents last month, the extra revenue is not enough to cover steadily increasing costs, Gould said.

Congressional sources said it would be difficult to get higher postal subsidies approved by Congress. The House twice voted down increases last fall, and President Ford opposes any increase.

As major reasons for the Postal Service's financial condition, Gould cited general inflation and the added cost of labor under contracts that call for cost-of-living increases, a decline in usage of the mails and the lengthy procedure for raising postal rates.

Office tower cash showdown set

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Democratic legislators have set Thursday for a showdown on mounting problems embroiling the financially plagued State Office Tower.

Majority Democratic members of the State Controlling Board balked Monday at a Rhodes Administration request for a $10 million transfer from the General Revenue Fund to pay private contractors for completed construction work. The budgetary maneuver was proposed because of a cash shortage caused by state's postponement last week of a $60 million capital improvements bond sale.

The entire chain of events is traceable to the debt-ridden 44-story office tower and its financial guardian, the Ohio Building Authority.

Gov. James A. Rhodes said the building's financial condition was so shaky that a bond sale could endanger the state credit rating. He called on the General Assembly to appropriate $12 million to bail out the building authority which oversees the tower's debt.

"I admit this does not solve the problem of financing the State Office Tower," Budget Director-designate William W. Wilkins said in presenting the administration request. "It only addresses the problem for the current biennium."

Wilkins said the $10 million would go for building projects already completed at 37 Ohio colleges and universities.

"If indeed all of our problems are predicated on the Ohio Building Authority's financial dilemma," asked Sen. Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown, "wouldn't it be more appropriate for some immediate confrontation with the OBA board?"

The board decided it would and shelved the Rhodes request at least until the special Thursday meeting.

Before leaving the subject, Meshel, the Senate's majority whip, castigated Rhodes for "a very great disservice by proclaiming to the world that the State of Ohio has fiscal problems." The reference was to Rhodes' recommendation to put off the bond sale.

Control Board President Robert Howarth, who represents Rhodes on the watchdog finance panel, defended the governor's action: "One ounce of uncertainty means we ought to get out of the bond market."

Rhodes has said the eventual sale on the bonds will hinge on whether the legislature agrees to appropriate the $12 million.

The focus of the debate, the brownish-gray tower, was clearly visible from north window of the Statehouse committee room as the debate dragged on.

"It's time for some very important surgical work to solve the problem," Meshel finally decided. The board then turned to other matters.

Controllers pared a request by the Personnel Board of Review from $350,000 to $100,000. The board, which handles state-employee job disputes requested the money to help clear a backlog of appeals resulting from new civil service classification which took effect at the first of the year.

The $100,000 grant cut the state emergency purposes fund to $152,000 for the balance of the fiscal year (to July).

Board members waived competitive bidding, allowing the Ohio House Development Board to pay a Cincinnati law firm $20,000 to seek judicial review by the Ohio Supreme Court of the state housing law. The firm of Peck, Shaffer & Williams will ask the court whether it is legal for the state to issue revenue bonds to provide loans for low and middle income housing.

In other action, the board:

—Refused to allow the adjutant general to transfer $315,000 from his disaster relief fund for the construction of Hamilton Armory in Butler County. Legislators said the disaster surplus money—about $500,000 in all—should be funneled into the state General Revenue Fund even though $865,000 in available federal funds for the armory will probably be lost.

—Approved a mental health contract with Homemakers International Co. for a licensed practical nursing service at Longview State Hospital in Cincinnati.

—Authorized the Department of Natural Resources to spend $42,600 to buy nearly 40 acres from private owners in Ross County for the Great Seal State Park.

—Deferred action on construction money requests from Ohio State, Ohio University and Miami University, pending a resolution of the Rhodes request for the $10 million transfer.

CIA chief admits exposing agency links to reporters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid charges and countercharges over the leakage of intelligence secrets turned over to the House intelligence committee, CIA director William E. Colby has acknowledged that he too was once an anonymous source for a newspaper story exposing CIA contacts with journalists.

Colby and other Ford administration officials accused the House panel Monday of violating its oath by disclosing top-secret intelligence operations contained in the committee's final report which was to be released this Friday but which was leaked to the news media over the weekend.

"The committee seems neither able to keep secrets nor its agreement," Colby told a news conference in one of his last official acts as head of the CIA.

Meanwhile, the Senate is expected to vote today to confirm former Republican national chairman George valuations at their Jan. 1, 1975, levels.

Many fear the governor's proposal would be unconstitutional, however, violating the existing constitutional mandate for all real property in Ohio to be taxed at a uniform rate.

Ohio counties have been undergoing property tax reappraisals in groups since the start of a statutory, six-year reappraisal cycle in 1972. Those already reappraised would not get the benefit of the Rhodes' freeze as now written.

Aside from those proposals, the House Ways and Means Committee tentatively scheduled a vote late today on a bill that would spare real estate taxpayers year-to-year increases resulting from inflated property values by providing a system of tax credits.

The House last week approved and sent the Senate a bill to give a five-year tax discount to homeowners for improvements they make to their property.

Another proposal, approved by the House and pending in the Senate, would reduce assessments for industries paying the tangible personal property tax.

Bush as Colby's successor at the CIA. Also, former CIA director Richard M. Helms, currently under investigation by the Justice Department for his role in past agency misdeeds, is scheduled to testify before the Senate Government Operations Committee on legislation that would create a new panel to monitor the intelligence community.

FBI director Clarence M. Kelley told the committee Monday that the establishment of such a committee could jeopardize the bureau's investigative work.

Colby acknowledged in an interview Monday that he had revealed to the Washington Star in November 1973 that the agency had some three dozen American journalists working abroad on its payroll.

Colby said the question was raised by a Star staffer during a meeting he was having with the newspaper's editorial board. Colby said he "couldn't be in a position of telling them something false" and so he responded affirmatively to the question.

During the interview and a later news conference Monday, Colby also:

—Denied a statement in the House committee's report that the CIA manipulated the British-owned Reuters news agency. Colby accused the panel of distorting a hypothetical reference to Reuters and said the name was raised for the hypothetical discussion by someone on the committee, not himself.

—Said he doesn't know of any pornographic films made by the CIA other than "Happy Days," a phony film reportedly produced to make President Sukarno of Indonesia angry with the Soviet Union.

According to sources, the House committee report says Sukarno was caught in a sexual affair in Russia and the CIA made a film — using an actor — purportedly showing him in an embrace. The film was to have been distributed in Indonesia in a way that made it appear to be peddled by Russian agents.

—Confirmed that Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., once gave the CIA advice on how to try to avoid testifying at a Senate hearing on Chilean activities. He called Jackson's action "perfectly appropriate."

—Declined to confirm the House committee report's statement that the CIA supplied weapons to Kurdish rebels in Iraq at the order of President Richard M. Nixon despite the agency's opposition to such a step. Colby said in such situations "the fact that a general doesn't agree with an order doesn't relieve him of the responsibility of carrying it out."

—Acknowledged the report's finding that some weapons given to Angolan factions were listed at one-third of their price but he said this was in keeping with U.S. policy on excess weapons and that the low valuation was on only a small part of the U.S. aid to Angola.

—Said the recent leaks of secrets turned over to the House Committee and other congressional panels have brought CIA effectiveness to a new low point. "I had thought about early December we had managed to get through a year of investigation . . . without really indicating that we could not protect some important secrets," Colby said. But, "right now we're about as low as I can think with this enormous leakage of all the material we gave to the House committee."

—Called the House report "a partial, sensationalized, biased view." When the first revelation of CIA wrongdoing occurred more than a year ago, Colby said he failed to anticipate the "sensationalized character that would be given to the few CIA misdeeds that we had."

Stock list takes dip

NEW YORK (AP) — A wave of early profit taking left the stock market with a modest loss today in continued active trading.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off .95 at 960.56, and losers held a 3-2 edge on gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Dow dropped more than 4 points in the early going, and then began a gradual recovery. Analysts said the market's swings reflected the continued pulling and tugging of profit-taking forces and buyers attracted by the 109-point runup in the Dow from the first of the year through Monday's close.

Citicorp paced the active list, up 1/4 at 29 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks lost .11 to 52.73. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index edged up .04 to 94.89.

Commissioners

Agency on Aging, presented a compromise position. He said he felt that federal funds should be utilized to initiate programs for the elderly. However, he apparently felt they should not come under the auspices of local government. If there is sufficient community support for a program to continue its operation when the federal funding ends, that's fine, he said. If, on the other hand, the program has not gained community support, it should be allowed to fold, he added.

The associate pastor of the Grace United Methodist Church indicated that the support for these programs should come largely from civic organizations, churches and other charitable groups. The church emphasis is to "help thy neighbor," he said, and such programs offer church people an excellent opportunity to put this concept into practice.

Perrill responded that his efforts toward helping his neighbor were assisting the "round-shouldered man next door who is bearing the tax burden."

The commissioners concluded that they would prefer to leave responsibility for the federal programs with the area agency on aging, and ask the Fayette County delegation to continue to present the needs of local residents to the agency.

Representing Fayette County on the Central Ohio Area Agency on Aging are Rev. Puffenberger, Mrs. Harry Stoughton, Miss Mary Frances Snider and George Lundberg. The alternates for each delegate respectively are Rev. Wolford, Mrs. George Naylor, Mrs. Vesper Flint and Elmer Reed. All eight persons have been active in the many programs for the elderly which have been initiated in the county. These include the Senior Nutrition program, the Senior Citizens Center, the Meals on Wheels, Outreach, Help Anonymous and provisions for transportation for the elderly among others.

Each of the seven smaller counties in the Central Ohio Area Agency on Aging have four representatives while Franklin County has 12. One of the requirements of the 40-member panel is that it have at least 51 per cent membership of persons 60 years of age or older.

Opinion And Comment

Men's wear liberation

The aloha shirt from Hawaii has been around for quite some time. Harry Truman used to sport one on Florida visits when he was president. But this colorful - some would say gaudy - item of apparel has been given special impetus in recent years by the Hawaiian garment industry's promotion of "Aloha Shirt Friday" in Honolulu.

By now the custom has become so well accepted that most of the city's men routinely wear such garb one day a week. Some of the less conventional opt for the freedom and gaiety of aloha shirts every day.

This phenomenon prompts comment on the men's wear situation back here in the 48 contiguous states. In general, men are freer and easier about what they wear than they were a couple of decades ago, even in the days when Truman was president. Yet the fact is that in most cities white collar workers still lean heavily toward conventional suit-and-tie garb when at work. Often it is expected of them, and some cases they would be fired if they didn't conform.

That is a little silly, given the variety of clothing now available for men. Why should business and professional men, and office workers generally, be limited to what is in effect a kind of uniform? Why not, instead, exercise the much wider freedom of choice now available to them - and not just on Fridays?

THESE DAYS...By John Chamberlain

Could there ever be too much gold?

The proponents of an international gold standard, the so-called Gold Bugs, have had their innings lately. Despite recent fluctuations in the London price of an ounce of the precious metal, the Arabs, among other people, prefer it to such "I owe you nothings" as Special Drawing Rights. Gold has indubitably scored a comeback, even though Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon has no desire to see it made an official store of value for Americans.

The argument used to be made, after World War I and on through the depressed 1930's, that there wasn't enough gold in the world to finance the expanding economies needed by constantly exploding populations.

Well, how much would be enough? And where is the dividing line between "enough" and "too much"?

After the Spanish conquest of Mexico and Peru there was too much Aztec and Inca bullion for Europe to digest. The resulting high price rises caused great hardships and, incidentally, helped ruin the Spanish nation.

On the other hand, gold production in the late 19th century in the U.S. wasn't enough to keep prices from falling. Depressions came with periodic regularity. There was the agitation for Free Silver. William Jennings Bryan almost won on the silver issue in 1896. He would undoubtedly have become President later on if metallurgists hadn't discovered the cyanide process to get gold cheaply from low grade ores. The new process happily coincided with the Klondike gold rush and the development of the South African Rand.

Nobody can predict what will happen from a new discovery in metallurgy until the "costing out" experts have had some trial-and-error efforts to assess. But what would happen now if something much better than the cyanide process and its derivatives should come along? With gold more readily available, the treasuries of the world might feel better about returning to a hard currency base. But a superfluity of gold could itself become a cause of renewed price inflation. The higher mathematics involved in this would necessarily depend on hundreds of unforeseen contingencies, but we can be sure of one thing: there would be a terrible scramble among the speculators.

Such a scramble may be just over the horizon if some new patents taken out by former Navy Lt. Comdr. Fritz Wanzenberg mean what is claimed for them. Wanzenberg is an oceanographer who was in charge of the electronic protection of U.S. warships in World War II. He has a background as a mining equipment designer for Kennecott Copper and the American Metal Climax Corporation. In short, he is no kook.

As an oceanographer Wanzenberg was impressed by the fact that the ocean contains 44 pounds of gold per cubic mile. It is too costly to get at when it appears in such dilute form. But nature, by a mysterious process of ion exchange, has concentrated gold in the so-called carbonaceous ores that used to be the world's sea beds. The phenomena connected with ion exchange are hardly matters for a 720-word column, but Wanzenberg's patents for burning the graphite in unoxidized carbonaceous deposits and getting out the gold are based on demonstration. The commercial cost of exploiting them, of course, is quite another matter.

The most astounding Wanzenberg feature is one that depends on vaporization. This process ignites the ore, converts its metal particles into a mist, and then collects the metals - including silver - in sequence as each metal vapor cools at a different temperature. As a distinct non-expert in such things as ion exchange, metal vaporization, the extent of carbonaceous ore beds, the availability of capital for new mining ventures, and scores of other aspects of the business of making a precious metal a little less precious, I would not presume to make a prediction on the basis of the Wanzenberg patents. But what if we are on the verge of another big turnover in a fundamental technology?

There is more than gold involved here. If other metals in the carbonaceous beds suddenly become more available along with gold, what could happen to all those gloomy predictions made by the Club of Rome and other prophets of scarcity?

It would be back to the drawing boards for more than the monetary experts. There could be economic and political chaos.

Myths influencing tax policy?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — While state government officials wrestle with the complexities of Ohio's tax structure, an Ohio State economist says "four myths" continue to influence tax policy decisions.

"These are widely held but mistaken beliefs that influence tax policy-making in directions that seem to me to be harmful to the state's economy and the citizens of Ohio," Dr. Frederick D. Stocker says.

The number one myth, and the hardest for most Ohioans to accept, is that Ohio taxes are not high.

"There is probably no taxpayer anywhere in the country who does not feel that he is overtaxed," Stocker told the legislature's Joint Economic Conference. "Ohioans have substantially less basis for this opinion than citizens of most other states."

According to Stocker, Ohio in 1973-74 was 42nd among 50 states in total general revenue per capita from tax sources.

In fact, he contended, "there was no category of public revenue (tax money) in which Ohio was even close to the national per capita average. In terms of revenue per $1,000 personal income, Ohio remains where it was before 1971—at or next to the lowest in the nation."

Stocker, a professor of economics and public administration who helped frame the state income tax law in 1971, says the income tax has proven to be "one of the most innocuous taxes of its sorts in the nation."

"Only at the low end of the income scale (under $5,000), where Ohio collects small positive amounts of tax while many other states either impose none or offer rebates, are Ohio effective rates above the median for income tax states," he said.

Stocker's second myth is that "taxes imposed on business are somehow not paid by ordinary people."

Rubbish, he says. "In the final analysis, all taxes reduce the real income of some real, live person...in the form of higher prices...lower earnings...or reduced net earnings."

Myth number three: Stocker argues that proposals for selective tax exemptions, tax rebates and tax freezes is a dangerous approach to economic development.

"An attitude of skepticism is especially appropriate with respect to claims that tax reduction will stimulate economic development to the degree that more revenue will be collected rather than less," he said. "Far more likely, in my judgment, tax abatement devices produce little results but can be very costly in terms of lost revenue, which must be made up by other taxpayers."

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Child's 'Leash' may be lifesaver

DEAR ABBY: May I please respond to INDIGNANT MOTHER, who tried to justify placing her child in a harness to save him from being lost or run over, or falling down a flight of stairs?

A child should be taught-not leashed! To defend using a harness by saying it's for the child's protection is a cop-out used by parents who are too lazy or busy to look after their own children. There is no substitute for a mother's personal attention.

Of course, unkind remarks from strangers are out of place, but someone should open the eyes of mothers who put leashes on children. Maybe the mothers should put on THEMSELVES and be walked through the stores and airports for their "protection." Adults also get lost, run over and fall down stairs.

I say, God giveth and God taketh away, harness or no harness.

UNLEASHED IN OKLAHOMA
DEAR UNLEASHED: Please read on for another point of view.

DEAR ABBY: This is for INDIGNANT MOTHER, who was frequently subjected to insults from strangers because she used a harness on her 2-year-old child.

I, too, used a harness, and a plain, old-fashioned dog leash on my two children when they were toddlers. They were 11 months apart in age and quite a handful. While I worked in the yard or hung my clothes outside, I'd clip their harnesses to the clothes line so they could run and play within safe limits.

While shopping with my harnessed youngsters, I collected many cold stares from strangers. Some even reminded me that I was raising children-not dogs.

Then, something happened that made it easier for me to bear those insults. A beautiful, 2-year-old neighbor girl was killed. Two minutes earlier, she was beside her mother in the kitchen. There was one broken-hearted mother, one dead child and one unsuspecting driver who didn't see the wee curly head dart from between two parked cars until he felt the thump of a wheel go over her little body.

That was 25 years ago. Today I am the mother of two living children and six grandchildren, and I thank God that He gave me the intelligence to value the lives of my children above the criticism of a few "know-it-alls."

Indignant mother, forget your indignation and rock your living baby to sleep. Keep him harnessed until he's old enough to understand simple danger. It's much better than carrying flowers to a small grave.

MRS. O.K. IN VA.

DEAR ABBY: Bravo to the mother who uses a harness on her small child! Many mothers don't use one because they are afraid of appearing "cruel."

As a physical therapist, I have treated many small children for dislocated shoulders caused by impatient parents who have literally pulled their children's arms out of their sockets holding onto their hands in traffic.

A dislocated shoulder can go undetected for a long time while causing much damage and discomfort.

Wendy's Old Fashioned Hamburger restaurant

New restaurant opens Wednesday

The new Wendy's Old Fashioned Hamburger Restaurant, located on Columbus Avenue near the Washington Square Shopping Center, will open at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday.

The new fast-food restaurant, which is situated on a 31,207-square foot lot owned by Columbus real estate developer William Hadler, has been under construction here since late August.

The 2,100-square foot restaurant building, constructed at an estimated cost of $100,000, is located on a lot immediately east of the Goodyear service store on Columbus Avenue.

The restaurant will open at 10:30 a.m. daily and remain open until 10 p.m. weekdays and 11 p.m. on weekends.

Eugene F. Imbrogno, president of Wendy's of West Virginia, Inc., which owns and will operate the Washington C.H. restaurant, said that the facility will provide 40 new jobs for local residents.

In addition to a drive-up window service, the restaurant will feature an interior dining area. Thirty-eight off-street parking spaces have also been provided with an entrance and exit off Columbus Avenue.

"We fix hamburger 256 ways, and every one is made to order with a choice of eight different condiments in any combination of quarter-pound, half-pound and three-quarter pound sizes," said R. David Thomas, who founded the parent company, Columbus-based Wendy's International, Inc.

Wendy's International, Inc. opened its first restaurant in Columbus in 1969. The chain now operates over 250 restaurants.

Don Gussler will manage the Washington C.H. restaurant.

New children's blood fund started by Ohio couple

CINCINNATI (AP) — Children with blood diseases, whose parents have no hope of ever replacing large amounts of needed plasma, would be assured of needed supplies under a new blood fund sponsored by a Moscow, Ohio, couple.

The need for this type of fund has been obvious for many years, according to Joe Costa, supervisor of the Paul I. Hoxworth Blood Center at the University of Cincinnati Medical Center.

Mr. and Mrs. William Winters, Moscow, Ohio, asked the center to host the program named for their granddaughter, Ann Folts. The six-year old died of leukemia at Children's Hospital in Cincinnati Nov. 18, 1975, owing 118 pints of blood.

Friends, relatives and church groups were able to replace the needed blood. The Winters, meanwhile, learned of the plight of parents of other children while their granddaughter was hospitalized and decided to establish the Ann Folts Memorial Blood Drive for Childhood Diseases.

Blood center coordinator Sherry Hildebrand said of the parents of hemophiliac and leukemia children must be assured of supplies and should be spared of the grief of replacing it or paying for it.

"Knowing they owe you a hundred pints of blood can be a heavy burden — especially when you realize a pint of blood is worth $30, she said."

Costa said some 80 children in the Cincinnati area owe at least 20 pints each to the center. One boy has used 1,165 pints while others require only four pints to several hundred annually.

Costa said that 44,000 pints were used in 1974, with 11,485 going to hemophiliac children alone. Only 3,102 units have been replaced.

Utility bill criticized by league

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An Ohio Municipal League spokesman says a House bill revising the formula for calculating utility rate request data is more favorable to the utilities than present law.

Richard M. Fanelly, public utilities director of the City of Akron and chairman of the league's energy task force, referred to a bill nearing a vote in the House Insurance, Utilities, and Financial Institutions Committee.

In a prepared statement, Fanelly told the committee that the pending measure would repeal existing statutes traditionally relied upon by Ohio's cities to fix utility rate for gas and electric utilities.

The bill replaces the existing "RCN" rate formula with a so-called fair value formula which includes construction work in progress in the value of utility property upon which a new rate would be determined. Under RCN (reconstruction costs new, less depreciation), the utilities use what it would cost to replace existing equipment at current value.

Fanelly said Ohio's consumers would be better protected if the bill, in its present form, were defeated because a utility "could ignore the legitimate concerns of locally elected officials, a situation that is clearly detrimental to local consumers of gas and electric services."

Cleveland acquires old submarine

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland has acquired a submarine, complete with torpedo tubes.

The USS Cod has been turned over to the Cleveland Coordinating Committee for the Cod, which had raised $25,000 in public contributions to save the World War II vintage sub from the scrap heap.

Transfer papers from the Navy were handed over to the committee's chairman, Rear Adm. Richard Freundlich, ret., in ceremonies Sunday.

Gag order issued in Cincinnati probe

CINCINNATI (AP) — A gag order was issued in the case of a Columbus, Ohio publisher and evidentiary arguments were scheduled for six policemen seeking reinstatement of pay in separate developments in the scandal probe of the Cincinnati police department.

Hamilton County Common Pleas Court Judge William Morrissey Monday barred court clerks from releasing any prosecution evidence to newsmen in the cases of Larry Flynt, publisher of the "Hustler" magazine and owner of a Cincinnati bar by the same name, and Flora Griffith Flynt.

Their attorneys argued that release of forthcoming bills of particulars in the cases would damage their chances of fair trials.

Similar reports on the cases of suspended Police Chief Carl Goodin and six indicted officers were released last week by Hamilton County Prosecutor Simon Leis Jr.

The bills, detailing evidence which led to indictments, were requested by defense lawyers. Leis said. Leis said the bills were "public record."

Flynt was indicted on charges of bribery in supplying prostitutes for police officers in return for lack of enforcement of liquor violations. He was named in a separate indictment with Flora Griffith Flynt on a charge of sodomy.

Fraternal Order of Police attorney Donald Hardin asked the court to order acting Police Chief Myron Leistler and city officials to release evidence against the indicted policemen to the defense today.

Hardin said the officers need to know the nature of departmental investigation information against them to defend themselves before the Cincinnati Civil Service Commission.

The officers are seeking reinstatement or reinstatement of pay while their cases are in litigation. All were suspended Dec. 17 when indictments were returned against them by a special Hamilton County grand jury.

Hardin said Leistler refused to divulge evidence against the officers in dispositions taken last week. Hardin said the men were suspended without being informed of charges against them, other than indictments had been returned.

City workers face dismissal

YOUNGSTOWN (AP) — Youngstown Mayor Jack Hunter says dismissal notices have been mailed to about 75 city workers who stayed off the job Monday in a sick-call work stoppage.

City officials said most of the 1,200 union members working for the city ignored picket lines, and the strike had little effect on city operations.

The picket lines were set up by family members and friends of the striking workers in the airport, street and water departments. A law department spokesman said workers who refused to cross picket lines of Community Workers Association Local 14 would be docked one day's pay.

DEWEY SHEIDLER & OHIO STATE LIFE HAS THE "RETIRIA" PLAN FOR YOU

RETIRIA: For those individuals who want to establish their own tax-sheltered Individual Retirement Accounts (IRA) or those who want to supplement existing retirement plans plus HR 10 Keough.

SURVIVOR BENEFITS: We offer an annuity guarantee, which provides the individual's family with continuing pension payments, in the event of the annuitant's death after retirement.

ADDITIONAL CONTRIBUTIONS: We offer an optional flexible payment annuity fund which enables the individual to increase his/her savings fund for retirement. Although these contributions are not tax-sheltered, this money is covered by the same maximum growth and safety that applies to the tax-sheltered "IRA" account.

Our "RETIRIA" with the flexible payment annuity, has even more advantages: Guaranteed Income — We will pay a lifetime income from the date you elect to retire, anytime between 59½ and 70½ years of age.

Now Paying Eight Per Cent . . . Guaranteeing 4 per cent compounded annually. (Flexible Annuities)

Our life insurance has within it's program . . . you don't pay a dime for — Kidney Foundation and Heart Transplant up to $25,000.

The non-cigarette smoker is tried and proven through research in the U.S., Canada and Europe . . . all to the clients advantage.

Whether you use the tax shelter or not the flexible annuity is a tremendous plus for you and a further plus if you buy the Life Insurance in addition.

Fayette County history highlighted by Mr. Robinson

Fourteen members and one guest of the Martha Washington Committee on Indian Affairs, Daughters of the American Revolution, met in the home of Mrs. Harold Slagle for the January meeting when they heard about early Fayette County history. The business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Robert Harris, vice chairman, with Mrs. Howard Perrill as acting secretary.

Mrs. Slagle, Regent, announced that the Washington C.H. DAR chapter will meet in the home of Mrs. Howard Perrill at 2 p.m. Feb. 2, when the guest speaker will be Mr. Donald Moore. She also announced that on Feb. 21 the annual MW DAR Tea will be held in Grace United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Harris welcomed Mrs. L.M. Hays as a guest for the afternoon.

Guest speaker Mr. George Robinson gave the history of Fayette County, and reminded the members that the county was named after Marquis de La Fayette. At one time, Fayette County was named Little Bristle, and was formed from a part of Ross County, which was called Bib Bristle. He told of some of the early settlers whose names were: George Compton, the Funk Family, Harness Family, Abner Todhunter, Violet Feagans and Robert Dobbins. Mr. Robinson stated that in 1800 the recorded population of the county was 6,336, in 1840 the population had doubled and in 1880 there were 20,000 population recorded. He also told of the devastation done by the cyclone in 1885. His presentation was very well received. An interesting question and answer period followed.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Slagle from a very lovely appointed table. She was assisted by Mrs. Harris, Mrs. Cecil VanZant and Mrs. Donald Pierce.

Americana

Handbags for the Bicentennial

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

A HANDBAG is a handbag is a Bicentennial conversation piece when it's from the new Americana collection by Harry Rosenfeld, Inc.

These bags, each featuring an authentic reproduction of 18th century American hardware, will delight antique buffs. The hardware, researched with the aid of the Wadsworth Atheneum of Hartford, Conn., is eye-catching.

None of the reproductions used was designed originally with fashion in mind but, in the hands of Rosenfeld stylists, such utilitarian designs as a whiffle-tree (part of a horse's harness arrangement) and a sheep's hobble (used to prevent the animal from going through or over fences) add decorative touches of yesterday to handbags for today.

Old Locks and Hinges

A bolt lock, found on the garden gate of a Moravian Sister's home in Bethlehem, Pa., (circa 1750) now bolts a roomy handbag shut. A cockshead hinge—the original found on a Salem door (circa 1780) — provides another unique touch.

While many of the reproductions are functional — the sheep's hobble joins shoulder straps to bag, the lock is used as a bolt-some are merely decorative, such as an escutcheon plate picturing a Hessian soldier, (circa 1790), featured on one bag's front flap.

REPRODUCTIONS of 18th century designs star on new handbags. Top, bolt lock (circa 1750); center, a cocks-head hinge (circa 1780); bottom, escutcheon plate showing soldier.

VFW Auxiliary schedules AFS students to speak

American Field Service exchange students Dominique Blanke of Belgium, and Ross Brown of New Zealand, will be guest speakers when the Burnett-Ducey VFW Auxiliary 4964 meets for a potluck supper at 6:30 p.m. Monday, Feb. 2 in the VFW Hall, W. Elm St.

The AFS students will present a program telling of their home countries, etc.

The total Indian population of Ohio at the beginning of the Revolutionary War has been estimated at only about 6,000, which was one Indian to every seven square miles. No census was ever taken but other historians have estimated that Ohio's Indian population never exceeded 15,000.

What do you want your clothes to do for you and for your family? Are they doing it & if not, what can you do to make each family member's clothes work for him or her?

Chances are the clothes aren't working very well if you make the above complaint. This seldom means that you really have no clothes to wear; it means that you don't feel well-dressed or confident in your clothes. Maybe the clothes don't fit. Maybe they aren't as fashionable as you want. Maybe they aren't becoming in style, texture, or color. Maybe you have nothing that is appropriate to wear to a particular place or special event.

Or perhaps the clothes need some repair - a zipper replaced or a seam restitched. Oftentimes a person has a lot of clothes but has failed to put them together in outfits that are coordinated for a total look. Examine your clothes and accessories. Decide what else is needed for them to work in your wardrobe.

Maybe you don't need traditional clothes in your wardrobe. For instance, do you have to have a business suit to be well-dressed for your job? Or for your church? Or for your social life? If not, don't buy it. A wardrobe that works for you should have complete outfits that will take you where you want to go and need to go, giving you a feeling of well-being.

To help you go through the wardrobe planning process for that well-dressed look, be sure to enroll now in our "Wardrobe That Works" independent study course that you complete at home in your leisure.

Lessons included are: 1 - "Look at Yourself" which will help you examine personal coloring figure lines and fashion needs.

2 - "Shape Up Your Plan" provides guidelines for your wardrobe's new look.

3 - "Ship Out or Reshape" gives resources and directions for recycling those garments you are not wearing.

4 - "Build On For a Complete Wardrobe" shows you how to use fashion scarves for many new looks as well as make other fashion additions to complete your outfits.

MR. AND MRS. DOUGLAS PITZER

Miss Linda Cox is bride of Mr. Douglas Pitzer

Miss Linda Cox, daughter of Mrs. Carol Cox and the late James Cox, of near Jeffersonville, became the bride of Mr. Douglas Pitzer, son of the Mr. and Mrs. Edward Pitzer, also of near Jeffersonville.

The double-ring ceremony was performed in the Bookwalter Church of Christ by the Rev. Wayne Knisley, pastor of the church, Jan. 2.

Music was provided by Mrs. David Reed.

The bride was lovely in her antique satin gown trimmed with lace on the bodice and sleeves. She carried a bouquet of painted daisies with satin streamers and her only jewelry was a gold cross necklace, a gift from the groom. Her gown had a square neckline and wide bands of lace enhanced the full skirt. The sleeves were long and fitted.

Miss Cox was given in marriage by her uncle, Roger Cox, and Mrs. Beverly Cox served as matron of honor. Karl Johnson, brother of the groom, served as best man. Seating the wedding guests were Private James L. Cox of New Jersey and Specialist A. Frank Cox, of Hawaii, brothers of the bride. Mrs. Pitzer is a student at Miami Trace High School and her husband is engaged in farming.

The couple was honored at a reception held in the home of the groom's parents. They are presently residing on Wesley Chapel Road near Bookwalter.

Sweet Adelines plan meeting in Hillsboro

Women interested in singing barbershop harmony are invited to the Hillsboro Presbyterian Church at 8 p.m. Thursday, when a Sweet Adeline Chapter will be organized by Mrs. Pat Dorsey. She will introduce barbershop music to the group and this will be a time to discuss a permanent meeting place and time. A Chorus director is also needed, and anyone interested in learning to direct four part music, barbershop style, should contact Mrs. Dorsey at 120 Meadow Lane, Hillsboro, Hillsboro.

Church Women United to meet

Mr. Tom Mossbarger will be guest speaker for the annual Church Women United Meeting to be held at 2 p.m. Friday, Jan. 30, in First Baptist Church. Music will be provided by the Cecilian Double Trio. All women of the area are invited to attend.

Bismarck is the capital of North Dakota, which became the 39th state in 1889.

Rain sweeps over east; plains cold

By The Associated Press
Rain hit the East today, as clear skies and cold temperatures covered Plains and warm weather spread across the Northwest.
Rain fell throughout the Atlantic Coast states, in the central and southern portions of the Appalachians and over Alabama.

Dense fog with visibilities near zero in some places extended from New England to Virginia making travel extremely hazardous early today.
The spread of relatively mild air over New England has brought an end to the freezing rain that plagued the area Monday.
However, colder air produced some snow over Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and in the northern portion of Michigan.

Clear skies and cold temperatures spread across most parts of the Plains and Mississippi Valley today. Temperatures dropped below zero from the eastern Dakotas into Wisconsin and Northern Illinois.

Certificate

TO: Harold A. Hise, Treasurer, Fayette County, Ohio.

I hereby certify that the levies set forth on this abstract are correct in accordance with the provisions of the statutes.

HAROLD A. HISE, Treasurer
WASHINGTON C. H., OHIO

MARY MORRIS, AUDITOR
FAYETTE COUNTY, OHIO

NOTICE--GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS TO TAXPAYERS--IMPORTANT

REAL ESTATE stands charged on the County Treasurer's books in the name of the owner January 1, 1975. Property purchased after this date will not appear on the tax books in the new name until the records are received for the year 1975.

The above rates are used to determine the tax on GENERAL PERSONAL property. The return must be filed with the County Auditor between February 15th and April 30th of each year.

In making request for tax bills be sure to give sufficient description so that the property may be located in the records and be sure all real estate is included as the Treasurer is not responsible for omissions.

TV Viewing

By LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Norman Lear didn't buy it when TV Guide magazine reported last December that a nationwide survey it had commissioned found a whopping 82 per cent of the adult population in favor of television's controversial "family viewing" policy.

That's the plan that restricts TV programming between the hours of 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. — 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. in the Central Time Zone — to material that is "inoffensive to a general family audience." The idea is to reduce the amount of sex and violence on the air.

The magazine's findings must have been a blow to the Writers Guild, Directors Guild and Screen Actors Guild, which have filed suit against the policy on grounds it is censorship and violates the First Amendment. They certainly looked to be in a small minority.

Lear, who brought "All in the Family" to American television and currently supervises production of six other TV comedies as well (including "Maude" and "Good Times"), wasn't convinced. He hired a former MIT and UCLA professor who specializes in testing the validity of other people's surveys to analyze the TV Guide data, which the magazine had sent him as a courtesy.

"The reason I did this was that I looked at the article and laughed at the basic foolishness on which the research was based," Lear was saying the other day after he'd received his man's report.

The conclusion of Lee Christie: "The resounding 'yes' is rather hollow!"

What really got Lear was the finding that 58 per cent of the 1,024 persons interviewed had never heard of Family Viewing Time. It was only after the policy was defined for them that the subjects were asked if they favored or opposed it. Then the pro vote was 82 per cent.

"That's like the other side of the 'Do you still beat your wife?' question," said Lear. "What kind of an individual who doesn't know that much about it is going to say they don't like something called Family Viewing Time?"

"They are the same people who would say that they don't like America, they don't like Mom and they don't like apple pie!"

And true enough, Christie's breakdown does show that about 59 per cent of the people who said they approved of Family Viewing Time had admitted not knowing what it was initially. Only 7 per cent of the interview subjects had said they were very familiar with it.

Christie found further evidence of what he said was ignorance and confusion about the policy's impact. For although 82 per cent said they favored the concept as it was defined for them, 69 per cent said they would rather see each family decide for itself what to watch rather than allow someone else to impose stricter control on television content — precisely what Family Viewing Time represents.

Fats, oils production sets mark

WASHINGTON (AP) — World production of fats and oils this year is estimated at a record of 48.6 million metric tons, up 6 per cent from calendar 1975, including larger output of certain items which will mean stiffer competition for U.S. soybean producers, according to the Agriculture Department.

The department's Foreign Agricultural Service said that key factors in the larger 1976 fats and oils production include:

—A near-record U.S. soybean crop which will provide 23 per cent more oil than the reduced 1974 harvest.

—More Brazilian soybeans, which will contribute 20 per cent more oil.

A 28 per cent increase in oil from a larger peanut crop in India.

—About 15 per cent more palm oil from major producers, including Malaysia and other tropical countries.

Of the total, U.S. fats and oils production this year — which include animal fats as well as oil from oilseeds — is expected to account for more than 11.5 million tons and foreign countries nearly 37.1 million tons. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds.

Exports of U.S. fats and oils are expected to total 4.25 million tons this year, only a slight increase from 4.1 million in calendar 1975 and still substantially below the 5.2 million tons exported in 1974, the agency said.

The net effect of rising world production is that the United States will no longer be "the only store on the block" when it comes to importing countries shopping for fats and oils.

200 to attend horticulture meet

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — More than 200 persons are expected to attend the annual meeting of the Ohio State Horticultural Society in Columbus Feb. 2-4.

The meeting, featuring a large fruit and vegetable show, will be held along with the Ohio Vegetable and Potato Growers Association meeting.

Over 100 persons register for Community Ed courses

Despite the power outage, over 100 area residents signed up for the Community Education program's winter classes Monday night at the Washington C.H. Middle School.

Community Education program director Hank Shaffer hopes the turnout for registration will increase tonight. Prospective students may register between 7 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. in the Middle School cafeteria.

Several classes offered will allow students to determine the night to meet. Those classes include Fayette County history, model building, poster making, water and boat safety and money management.

The remainder of the courses will be scheduled nights during the week.

Firemen respond to three alarms

Washington C. H. firemen received three fire calls Monday.

The first was at 4:10 p.m. at the Ann Elcees residence, 636 Willabar Drive. Firemen reported a furnace malfunction created smoke within the residence, but there was no fire.

At 4:43 p.m. firefighters were summoned to the Pauline Gordon residence, 1117 Gregg St., because of smoke within her home. Firemen could not find what caused the smoke, but reported no damage from it.

An accident at the intersection of Third and Vine streets at 4:44 p.m. resulted in a ruptured gas tank for one of the drivers involved. Firemen were asked to standby in case the gas ignited. It didn't. The auto which had a ruptured gas tank belonged to James Massie, 529½ Third St.

Flax was once an important crop in Ohio, spun and woven in the home and made into linen for the household. In 1869 Ohio produced 80 million pounds of flax fiber. This was reduced to two million pounds by 1886 due to cheaper gunny cloth from the East Indies which resulted in closing down of the state's flax mills.

It was either too warm or too cold in parts of Ohio to please safety officials Monday, but a cold front moving across the state today promised to solve at least part of their problems.

Temperatures in the upper 50s Monday in the Ohio River Valley were blamed for fog that caused a chain reaction collision involving seven trucks and five cars. Police in the Columbiana County town of Wellsville said five persons were injured, two seriously.

A chance of rain or snow Thursday and Friday. Fair Saturday. Highs in the 30s Thursday, rising to the 40s by Saturday. Low 15 to 25 Thursday and in the 30s Friday and Saturday.

Hung jury possible in factory arson

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — After eight days of deliberations produced only four verdicts, lawyers and defendants say the Sponge Rubber Products Co. arson trial may end in a hung jury.

The U.S. District Court jury has convicted two men, including a Tennessee minister reputed to be a psychic, and has acquitted the principal owner of the Shelton company along with another defendant. But five men remained on trial as jurors returned to deliberations today.

The jury said Monday its 12 members had "too many interpretations" of the cases, then recessed after a second day without returning any verdicts.

Some defendants and their lawyers said there were signs the jurors could become deadlocked, or hung, on some or all defendants because of complexities in the case of the factory destroyed March 1.

Defendant Peter Betres, a hotel owner from Butler, Pa., told reporters Monday the jurors seemed to have a "conscience" that was preventing them from returning more convictions. "They're like a salad — all mixed up," he said.

On trial with Betres and Ronald D. Betres, also of Butler; Albert R. Coffey of Cleveland, Ohio; Michael J. Tiche of Boyers, Pa., and Anthony A. Just of Greensburg, Pa.

They are accused of joining in a plot led by the Rev. David N. Bubar, an adviser to Charles Moeller, the president of Sponge Rubber's parent firm. Moeller was acquitted and Bubar was convicted of four arson-related counts.

Hoosiers nab all but one top vote

By The Associated Press

Top-ranked Indiana continues its domination of The Associated Press Top 20, receiving all but one of the first-place ballots from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

In the shuffle behind the Hoosiers, Marquette, Nevada-Las Vegas and North Carolina moved up one spot each to the Nos. 2, 3 and 4 positions as Maryland, second a week ago, lost to Clemson and North Carolina last week and dropped to seventh.

Also taking a nosedive following losses were UCLA, from sixth to 12th; St. John's, from ninth to 14th, and Wake Forest, from 14th all the way out of the Top 20.

Indiana boosted its record to 16-0 by beating Purdue and Minnesota last week, then notched victory No. 17 Monday night — an 88-73 decision over Iowa. The Hoosiers held a solid lead over Marquette, 1,198 points to 970.

Marquette scored easy victories over Xavier of Ohio, Creighton and Fordham last week to boost its record to 14-1, while Nevada-Las Vegas, 20-0, whipped Nevada-Reno twice and picked up the other first-place ballot.

Rutgers, seventh last week, jumped to fifth with a 15-0 record while Washington, 16-1, won twice at Hawaii and moved up from eighth to sixth.

Following Maryland in the Top Ten were North Carolina State, 13-2; Tennessee, 14-2, and Notre Dame, 11-3.

Alabama, which won twice, heads the second 10, followed by UCLA; Missouri; St. John's; Michigan; Oregon State; Princeton, a newcomer to the standings which upset St. John's 58-55 in overtime; Cincinnati; Centenary, another newcomer, and West Texas State and Virginia Tech, which tied for 20th.

Ray Scott kicked out

DETROIT (AP) — Ray Scott, the only Detroit Pistons' coach ever to compile a winning record, was fired Monday because of what management described as a communications breakdown.

The National Basketball Association team's general manager, Oscar Feldman, said that breakdown was the reason Scott was fired as coach, not the team's injury-riddled 17-25 season.

Assistant coach Herb Brown, who joined the Pistons staff last summer, will coach the team for at least the rest of this season.

Scott, who was named NBA Coach of the Year in 1974, was notified of his release by Feldman and the major owners during a Pistons practice session at a suburban Detroit high school.

Feldman would not specify the area of the breakdown with Scott. "It was between Ray and the entire organization — management, staff and players ... I don't want to go into specifics. I don't think it would be fair to Ray or the team," Feldman said late Monday.

The other two club owners are Bill Davidson and Herb Tyner.

Feldman said the remaining portions of Scott's contract would be honored. He was in the second year of a three-year pact.

Scott's relationships with the players, once considered a big part of his success, had deteriorated in the last two seasons.

Last year he had disagreements with Don Adams and Dave Bing. Adams later was cut from the team and Bing was traded at the end of the season.

NFC victorious in Pro Bowl

'Mike Special' leads grid win

By KEVIN McKEAN
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — "It's just go down to the fire hydrant and turn left," laughed Mike Boryla as he described the home recipe pass play that sparked the National Football Conference's 23-20 victory over the American Conference in the Pro Bowl.

Boryla brought the play, known to the huddle only as the "Mike Special," south from Philadelphia where he was a sometime starter for the Eagles.

The "Mike Special" and the "Hart Special," also named for its creator, NFC quarterback Jim Hart of the St. Louis Cardinals, produced the two touchdowns that won the nationally televised game Monday night.

It was the second year in a row that a quarterback who wasn't even supposed to be in the Pro Bowl led the NFC to victory.

Last year it was James Harris of the Los Angeles Rams who entered the game in the final quarter to toss a pair of touchdown passes in a span of 1:24 for a 17-10 triumph.

But this year Harris was suffering from a sore arm.

So were Archie Manning of New Orleans and Steve Bartkowski of Atlanta. Minnesota's Fran Tarkenton — the first choice of conference officials — was scratched for injuries, and Roger Staubach of Dallas was battered out of commission by the Super Bowl.

That left only Boryla to come in during the fourth quarter and throw a pair of touchdown passes in a period that consumed only 2:01 on the clock for the NFC edge.

The substitute was narrowly out-voted for Most Valuable Player in the game over punt return specialist Billy Johnson.

"I hadn't thrown the football for three weeks until practice Tuesday," Boryla said. "I usually like to start throwing three weeks early, so I wasn't in real good shape."

But the shape looked fine as he lofted a 14-yard scoring strike to Terry Metcalf of the St. Louis Cardinals with 3:10 remaining. That put the underdog NFC within striking distance at 20-16. On the next drive Metcalf's teammate, Mel Gray, elbowed under a Boryla toss in a crowded end zone for the game's final score with just 1:09 left to play.

Boryla describes his special as "kind of a razzle dazzle play" in which two faked handoffs lure the linebackers up close while Metcalf sneaks into the secondary for a pass.

The "Hart Special" saw Gray's end zone area cleared by a crossing pattern between the split and tight ends.

"It completed the season," was the way Boryla summed up a game in which four Pro Bowl records were shattered.

Johnson broke the marks for longest punt returns and most yards gained in a game, both of which were held since 1971 by Mel Renfro of Dallas.

The 5-foot-9, 170-pound Houston Oiler set up the game's first score as he bobbled a John James punt early in the second quarter, picked it up and raced back the left sideline for a 55-yard gain. Jan Stenerud booted a 20-yard field goal six plays later.

In the fourth quarter, Johnson evaded five would-be tacklers and rambled 90 yards to the end zone to give the AFC a 20-9 lead that seemed insurmountable. That broke Renfro's record of 82 yards.

Johnson said later he owed his success to "the guys on the special team for throwing super blocks and to the Man upstairs — to the Lord."

Also shattered was a 57-yard record for longest pass play, set on a throw from Harris to Gray last year.

Dan Pastorini of Houston broke that mark when he found teammate Ken Burrough for a 64-yard touchdown pass with only 12 seconds left in the half.

Lawrence McCutcheon of Los Angeles snapped the record for the longest run from scrimmage when he dodged 43 yards from his own 29 in the third quarter and fumbled into the arms of Harold Jackson, also of the Rams. The previous record was 30 yards, held since the 1975 Pro Bowl by O.J. Simpson.

Simpson was x-rayed following the game for a hand injured when he tried to protect his chin strap from a souvenir-hungry fan after the game. Doctors gave the Buffalo running back a clean bill of health.

Another record of sorts was set when Ray Guy became the first punter to bounce a kick off the Superdome instant replay screens — 90 feet above the artificial turf.

Guy says he aimed for the 20-by-40 foot color screens "just to see if I could do it."

The NFC seemed unable to move throughout the opening half as an AFC defense stifled the offense led by Hart of St. Louis.

Kansas City's Stenerud followed his opening field goal with a 35-yarder midway through the second quarter. The second kick was set up by Pastonini's 35-yard toss to Cliff Branch of Oakland.

The NFC threatened on the next series as Hart hit Detroit's Charlie Sanders for a gain of 38 yards to the AFC 43. But Pittsburgh's Jack Lambert picked off Hart's next toss on the 23 and Pastorini and Burrough connected for their long score on the following play.

Jim Bakken of St. Louis put the NFC on the scoreboard with a 42-yard field goal at 6:59 into the third period.

Then a Ken Anderson passing attack stalled for the AFC, and Hart's squad took over the ball on their own 20 after a Ray Guy punt sailed into the end zone.

Minnesota's Chuck Foreman broke loose for 26 yards on the second play from scrimmage and then snagged a Hart pass for another first down. Four plays later Hart found Foreman in the end zone from four yards out. The extra point was blocked but the score was narrowed to 13-9 with 10 seconds left in the third quarter.

Johnson's record-setting runback seemed to put the game out of the NFC's reach early in the final period, but Boryla came in to engineer a 64-yard scoring drive.

Three former greats join grid Hall of Fame

RAY FLAHERTY

LEN FORD

JIM TAYLOR

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Jim Taylor, Ray Flaherty and the late Len Ford, integral parts of gridiron dynasties in four different decades, have been elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Flaherty coached the Washington Redskins through their most successful era in the late 1930s and early 1940s. Ford, a bruising 250-pounder who was converted from offensive to defensive end, helped the Cleveland Browns to divisional titles seven times in eight seasons in the 1950s.

The 40-year-old Taylor is the most familiar name to the current generation of pro football fans. The powerful fullback played a key role in transforming the Green Bay Packers from National Football League doormats to champions in the 1960s.

He retired as the No. 2 rusher and touchdown-scorer in National Football League history with 8,597 yards and 83 touchdowns and holds the record of five consecutive 1,000-yard ground-gaining seasons.

Taylor, Flaherty and Ford will be inducted into the Hall of Fame here July 24.

"Being named to the Hall of Fame is the ultimate goal of every professional football player," Taylor said in New Orleans, where he does public relations work for a shipbuilding firm. "But being named at the age of 40 means I'm young enough so that I, my family and friends can really appreciate the honor and enjoy it for a number of years."

Ford, who died of a heart attack in 1972 at the age of 46, launched his pro career in 1948 as a pass-catching end with the Los Angeles Dons of the old All-America Conference. When the AAC and NFL merged in 1950, he joined the Browns and became an all-pro almost every season until his retirement in 1957.

"He was probably the finest defensive end in the history of the club," said a Browns' spokesman.

Flaherty was an outstanding end in the early years of the NFL. In 11 seasons as the Redskins' coach, his teams compiled a record of 80-37-5. He capped his career by guiding the Skins to a 14-6 upset of the Chicago Bears in the 1942 NFL title game.

After serving in the Navy, Flaherty led the New York Yankees of the AAC to divisional crowns in 1946 and 1947 and later coached the Chicago Hornets.

"For a person who has been out of football as long as I have, I'm kind of tickled about it," the 72-year-old Flaherty said at his home in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, where he is semi-retired.

"I'm very pleased and happy about it. It's the one thing that everybody in football looks forward to. The award is especially nice because this is my 50th anniversary since I began in pro football. That's a long time ago. Not very many people can remember back that far to when I played or coached."

Warriors defeat Georgia Tech

McGuire flirts with defeat

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Coach Al McGuire, whose Marquette Warriors are 15-1 and ranked second in The Associated Press college basketball poll, wants to flirt with defeat.

"I hope we have some tight games before we go to the tournament, if we go, and I think we will," McGuire said Monday night after Marquette defeated Georgia Tech 55-44 for its 11th straight victory.

"In fact," the Warriors coach said, "it probably won't hurt us to lose one before the tournament. That takes the pressure off. That's why Indiana didn't win it last year."

The Indiana Hoosiers, top-ranked this season, were undefeated last year when they were upset in the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament. The Hoosiers ran their record to 17-0 Monday night with an easy 88-73 victory over Iowa.

Looking lethargic through most of the game, Marquette spurted out to a 17-4 lead, let it dwindle to 25-20 at halftime, then twice built up margins of 18 points in the second half before Georgia Tech rallied in the final three minutes.

Earl Tatum scored 14 points, mostly from the outside, and Butch Lee added 12 to pace Marquette.

The only other member of the Top Ten to see action Monday was ninth-ranked Tennessee. The Volunteers downed Louisiana State 105-92 behind Bernard King and Ernie Grunfeld, who combined for 57 points.

Indiana used its pressure defense and got 32 points from Scott May to turn in its 27th consecutive Big Ten triumph, matching the record set by Ohio State in 1960-62. It also was the Hoosiers' 47th straight regular season victory.

No. 14 St. John's needed an eight-point spurt — six by Glen Williams — to break a 59-59 deadlock and edge Manhattan 78-72. Cecil Reliford topped the Redmen with 16 points, while George Johnson scored 14 points, 10 of them in the second half.

Rich Adams' tip-in of a missed free throw with 38 seconds left gave Illinois a 76-75 upset over 15th-ranked Michigan. Two frantic shots by Michigan failed in the last 11 seconds before the Wolverines hit after time had run out. Illinois' top scorer was Nate Williams with 26 points, while Ricky Green had 18 for Michigan before fouling out.

Seven points in overtime by Mike Jones boosted 18th-ranked Cincinnati over Wichita State 92-85, and Russell Davis' 20-foot jumper with just five seconds remaining and Phil Thiene-man's two free throws lifted 20th-ranked Virginia Tech past West Virginia 81-78.

In another action, it was Auburn 91, Kentucky 84 in overtime; Oral Roberts 84, Virginia Commonwealth 68; Tulane 101, The Citadel 85; Baylor 84, Arkansas 81; Texas Christian 73, Texas 70; Texas A&M 85, Rice 77; St. Louis 61, Drake 99 in overtime; Michigan State 66, Purdue 65, and Minnesota 82, Ohio State 69.

Next Blue Lion coach has tough act to follow

There's a big pair of shoes to fill at Washington Senior High School by next August when the Blue Lion football team takes the field for preseason practice.

With the resignation of 11-year veteran coach Maurice Pfeifer comes the problem of finding a replacement, and he is a tough act to follow.

Pfeifer's 68-37-5 record at Washington C.H. speaks for itself—he was a top notch prep coach. He has guided the Blue Lions to a perfect 10-0 season and two league championships. Washington Senior High School has enjoyed its most successful ten years of football during Pfeifer's reign.

Not only did he have a knack of turning 150-pound boys into hardnosed linemen, but he was also a very respected figure in his community. This is the type of man that school officials must replace.

The person who fills Pfeifer's chair will inherit a winning tradition, but he will also inherit a team that has been greatly depleted by the graduation of 26 seniors. This will leave 19 of the 22 starting positions open this September when the Blue Lions begin their 53rd football season.

Sports Mart

By PHIL LEWIS

This is not to say that Pfeifer got out while the getting was good. He has faced such situations in the past with the most memorable being the 1974 season when he lost all but four starters from a 10-0 team. Pfeifer turned that group of inexperienced players into a surprising 7-3 squad.

Not only will the new football coach have the tough job of building a league contender from last year's benchwarmers, but he will have the task of pleasing the fans, who are used to winning.

Blue Lion rooters may be expecting another successful grid season similar to the one in 1974 when a rebuilding year was turned into a winning year.

The last time the Washington C.H. fans saw a loser was in 1969, and that squad finished with a 4-5-1 record—a mark that many area schools could call a successful year.

Few times in the past ten years have Blue Lion fans left Gardner Park Stadium downhearted after suffering through a home-team loss. If such previously rare times become frequent in the future, the new coach will receive most of the blame whether it's mostly his fault or not.

They are a tough pair of shoes to fill and it promises to be a pressure-packed job. All we can do is offer the new coach the best of luck.

Circleville drops one notch

Three unbeatens top poll

By GEORGE STRODE
AP Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Canton McKinley, Delphos St. John and Gnadenhutten Indian Valley South are threatening to make The Associated Press' state high school basketball polls their personal domain the entire season.

The three unbeatens are out front again this week, marking the fourth straight time since the first ratings began early in January.

None of the trio shows signs of cracking with four more weeks of ratings remaining before the end of the regular season.

McKinley's Class AAA lead is 36 points over Barberton. St. John is 54 points up on Warsaw River View in Class AA. And Indian Valley South boasts a 62-point margin over No. 2 Morral Ridgedale in Class A.

McKinley is 14-0 this winter and undefeated in its last 31 regular season games. St. John is 12-0 and Indian Valley South 13-0.

The same cast makes up the three Top Tens this week with three exceptions.

Newcomer Springfield South (11-2) moved into No. 10 in Class AAA. There were no new faces among the Class AA elite, but newcomers Lordstown (13-0) and Oak Hill (11-1) shared 10th place among the Class A powers.

In Class AAA, Canton Timken and Cleveland St. Ignatius made the biggest moves. Timken (13-1) went from seventh to fifth on the strength of a 114-54 beating of Western Reserve Academy. St. Ignatius, unbeaten in 13 tests, surged from 10th to seventh.

Among the large schools, Bellefontaine was fourth, Columbus Linden-McKinley sixth, Middletown eighth and Cleveland Heights ninth.

In Class AA, Lorain Catholic held onto fourth, followed by Wellsville, Ironton, Circleville, Wheelersburg, Magnolia Sandy Valley and Columbus St. Charles.

Arcanum jumped one notch to fourth in Class A, Sandusky St. Mary was fifth, St. Henry sixth, New Riegel seventh, Maria Stein Marion eighth and Sebring ninth.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Here's how a statewide panel of sports writers and broadcasters rates Ohio high school basketball teams this week for The Associated Press (10 points for first to 1 point for 10th):

Sports briefs

'Golden Age' seen by Cincinnati Reds

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Golden Age of Sports is now as far as the Cincinnati Reds are concerned.

The Reds' success during the six years of this decade in winning four Western Division titles, three National League championships and a world championship, has literally lined their pockets with gold.

The players who have been with the club throughout this period have averaged nearly $10,000 per year, a total of $56,071.57, in addition to their regular salaries as a reward for their success.

Tim Tam winner of Latonia feature

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP) — Crafty Tim Tam won the long $3,700 "Silver Grove" handicap at Latonia Monday night by two lengths covering the mile and 1-16th in 1:50 4-5.

The winner paid $12.40, $8.20 and $6. Jack Burton placed, paying $6.60 and $4.60, and Ichabod was third, paying $5.60.

The 3-12 daily double of Cindy's Bandit and Sir Rulers Girl paid $139. Attendance was 3,105.

IHL All-Star clash scheduled tonight

MUSKEGON, Mich. (AP) — The annual International Hockey League All-Star game will be played tonight at Muskegon.

Don Perry of the Saginaw Gears will coach the North Division team against the South Division players, coached by Ivan Prediger.

Rightwinger Clyde Simon of the Flint Generals was added to the North team Monday when Dennis Desrosiers of Saginaw was sidelined with a hip injury.

Golden State beats Milwaukee, 115-104

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Rick Barry is upset because he's on another scoring spree, which is about the only thing troubling the runaway Golden State Warriors.

"I'm concerned. I shouldn't have to score that much," Barry said after collecting 28 points Tuesday night to help the National Basketball Association's defending champions down Milwaukee 115-104 and open an 11½ game lead in the Pacific Division.

The game was the only one scheduled.

ABA All-Star tilt scheduled tonight

DENVER (AP) — While coaches Larry Brown and Kevin Loughery agree that the game plan for tonight's American Basketball Association All-Star contest is to win, Commissioner

Dave DeBusschere and the league's Board of Trustees are trying to agree on a game plan for the future of the ABA.

"The All-Star Game is fun and a time to relax, but there is no question that we're going out there to win," said Brown, who will match his first-place Denver Nuggets against a 12-man team of all-stars coached by Loughery.

While Brown goes with his starting lineup that has opened a 3½-game lead over second-place New York — forwards David Thompson and Bobby Jones, center Dan Issel and guards Chuck Williams and Ralph Simpson — the all-stars will open with forwards Julius Erving of New York and Billy Knight of Indiana, center Artis Gilmore of Kentucky and guards James Silas of San Antonio and Brian Taylor of New York.

For reserves, Loughery has forwards Maurice Lucas of Kentucky, Marvin Barnes of St. Louis and Larry Kenon of San Antonio, center Billy Paultz of San Antonio and guards Ron Boone of St. Louis, George Gervin of San Antonio and Don Buse of Indiana.

Both teams worked out for about an hour Monday, and it was disclosed that Bobby Jones, who had been a doubtful starter because of recent chest problems, had been declared physically healthy after undergoing tests.

Involving elderly man

Two youths charged in robbery incident

Two Milledgeville youths have been charged with the robbery of an elderly Milledgeville man by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department.

Fayette County Sheriff Donald L. Thompson reported today Henry Lawson, 90, had been seated in a chair in the living room of his home at 10:30 p.m. Jan. 5 when the boys entered through a rear door and threw a blanket over him. They then grabbed a pair of Lawson's pants and removed his wallet, which contained an undisclosed amount of money and then fled. Deputies recovered the wallet and money through their investigation which led to the boys' arrest. Both have been released to the custody of their parents.

The sheriff's department also reported the arrest of a shoplifter and offense incidents involving burglary, larceny and vandalism today. Washington C. H. police reported a larceny and a case involving property destruction.

Steve Miller, 22, Rt. 2, was arrested at 3 p.m. Monday by sheriff's deputies and charged with petty theft through shoplifting. Miller allegedly stole a thickness gauge valued at $1.07 from the Seaway store, CCC-Highway-W. He is incarcerated in the county jail in lieu of $1,000 bond.

The Oscar Glass residence in Bloomingburg was entered sometime between 4:50 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. Monday by someone who broke the glass out of an entrance door. A microwave oven valued at $250 and a cassette recorder valued at $45 were stolen. Investigation by sheriff's deputies is underway.

A 12-volt battery valued at $25 was stolen from an auto owned by Michael Young, Jeffersonville, sometime between 3:30 p.m. and 9 p.m. Monday while the auto was parked at Bowland Lanes, CCC-Highway-W, deputies reported.

A tire and rim valued at $45 were stolen from the trunk of Leroy Farris' (901 Leslie Trace Court) car at 11:45 p.m. Friday while the car was parked in the Jaycee clubhouse parking lot, CCC-Highway-W. Deputies stated Farris had been loading items in his trunk and had left it for a few minutes.

The left rear window of a car belonging to Theresa McCarry, West Jefferson, was broken out sometime between 11:30 p.m. Saturday and 2:30 a.m. Sunday while parked behind the Pub Bar in Jeffersonville. Sheriff's deputies listed damage at $30 and are investigating.

Maybe "Get Away" is a poor choice of names for a car battery valued at $40, because that's exactly what it did at the Howard H. Thompson residence, 231 W. Elm St., sometime last week. Washington C. H. police reported the battery was stolen from Thompson's auto parked at the rear of his home. The "Get Away" battery got away, the thieves got away and police are trying to get them both back.

Two windows were broken at the McDonald and Sons, Inc., warehouse at 106 W. Paint St., sometime between Jan. 16 and Jan. 23. Police estimated damage at $75.

Seven auto mishaps checked by officers

Four accidents were investigated by Washington C.H. police Monday and three by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department. Although two of those traffic mishaps occurred during the power failure which knocked out all the traffic lights in the city, this was not a contributing factor, according to police. Officers complimented the driving public, stating the care and safety exhibited by drivers during the blackout was excellent.

POLICE
MONDAY, 4:45 p.m. - An unidentified driver struck a car owned by Thelma E. Barnett, 708 Peabody Ave., while her auto was parked in front of 732 E. Market St. Damage was moderate and police are seeking the person responsible.

4:35 p.m. - Cars driven by James K. Massie, 21, of 529½ Third St., and Ronald D. Mock, 28, Parrott-Station Road, collided at the intersection of Vine and Third streets. Police cited Massie for running the stop sign at the intersection. Damage was severe to his car which suffered a ruptured gas tank and resulted in the Washington C.H. Fire Department being dispatched to the location in case of fire. There was no fire, but firefighters stood by. Damage to the Mock auto was moderate.

1:40 p.m. - A rear-end collision at the intersection of Fayette and Delaware streets involved a truck driven by Bret T. Wilson, 16, of 525 Damon Drive, and a car driven by Daniel M. Rodgers, 17, of 1120 N. North St. Rodgers was charged with failure to maintain an assured clear distance ahead. Police said his brakes had locked-up causing him to slide on wet pavement and hit Wilson's truck.

An unidentified driver backed into the front end of a car belonging to Joan M. Mess, 23, of 219 Draper St., sometime Monday at the intersection of Draper Street and Clinton Avenue. Damage was minor.

SHERIFF
MONDAY, 6:30 p.m. - A car driven by William J. Fannin Jr., 17, of 5284 Ohio 41, traveled off Ohio 41, one and three-tenths of a mile north of Upper Jamestown Road and struck a fence belonging to Willis Ray, of South Solon. Damage to Fannin's car was estimated as moderate and sheriff's deputies cited him for failing to drive on the right half of the roadway.

1:25 p.m. - A car driven by Frank H. Sprague, 78, South Charleston, rolled backwards into a Dayton Power and Light Co. utility pole on Ohio 41-N, near the Ohio 734 intersection. Deputies stated his car had stalled and estimated damage as minor.

1:15 p.m. - A car driven by Goldie E. Colan, 69, of 410 Peddicord Ave., failed to negotiate a left curve on Ohio 41, seven-tenths of a mile north of Hickory Lane and skidded on wet pavement striking an Ohio Bell Telephone Co. pole and a fence owned by Jess Crago, Rt. 3. Ms. Colan claimed injury from the mishap, but was not treated according to deputies. Her auto was moderately damaged.

Prayer breakfast draws 48 persons

The third teen prayer breakfast of the new year drew 48 persons Tuesday morning at the South Side Church of Christ.

"Three Brief Prayers" was the topic for the meditation time led by the Rev. Charles J. Richmond. Melanie McArthur, a freshman at Washington Senior High School, and Linda Hollingsworth, a senior at Washington Senior High School, led the singing. Marty Huffman, a freshman at Washington Senior High School, offered prayer.

After breakfast, Becky Ragland, a sophomore at Washington Senior High School, gave the devotional on, "Being Yourself." Jane Henry, a sophomore at Washington Senior High School, dismissed the session with prayer.

The next prayer breakfast will be Tuesday, February 3, at 6:45 a.m. All teens, grades nine through twelve, are welcome.

Arrests

POLICE
MONDAY - Daniel M. Rodgers, 17, of 1120 N. North St., failure to maintain an assured clear distance ahead. James K. Massie, 21, of 529½ Third St., failure to obey traffic sign.

PATROL
TUESDAY - Michael F. Cahill, 17, Euclid, speeding.

SHERIFF
MONDAY - a 17-year-old and a 16-year-old Milledgeville boy, robbery; William J. Fannin Jr., 17, of 5284 Ohio 41, failure to drive on the right half of the roadway; David W. Poles, 22, Cincinnati, passing on a yellow line; Steve Miller, 22, Rt. 2, petty theft through shoplifting.

"FULL SERVICE SHOP"

Good, Better, Best

Good . . . dry hair can be cut to your particular style but its stiffness limits the cleanness of the cutting.

Better . . . hair that has been dampened will stretch slightly, and allow us to style to suit your wants.

Best . . . styling your hair after shampooing that opens the hair cells, creates the neatest cut.

Hair that has been shampooed and cut while still wet will stretch up to ½ inch allowing the hair to be combed and cut evenly. This styling gives you a better "haircut" that looks good when you leave the shop and stays good looking for days afterwards. Ask us about hairstyling for you.

Some 50,000 homes affected

Faulty voltage line blamed in blackout

A faulty high voltage electrical transmission line has been blamed for knocking out power in approximately 50,000 area homes Monday afternoon.

Homes in Fayette, Greene and Highland counties were affected for about an hour when a substation was put out of commission, officials at the Dayton Power and Light Co. said.

Power was restored to nearly all the communities involved within an hour following the massive outage.

But the village of Jeffersonville in Fayette County was without power for about five hours. The Dayton Power and Light Co. restored service to the 2,000 homes in Jeffersonville at 9:32 p.m. Monday.

"We still don't know what happened," a Dayton Power and Light Co.

spokesman said. "It may be that a switch burned out."

A Dayton Power and Light Co. official said that in all about 150,000 persons were affected by the outage.

"They all were cold," a company spokesman said. "Even gas furnaces need an electric fan to push the warm air."

Temperatures in the Washington C.H. area hovered around the freezing mark during the day and dropped as it grew dark.

More than 10 per cent of the company's customers were affected, officials of the utility company said.

The most homes affected were in Washington C.H. Other towns and cities affected included Jamestown, Shawnee Lake and Cedarville in Greene County, Jeffersonville in Fayette County, Sabina in Clinton County and Greenfield and Leesburg in Highland County.

The Robinson Road substation in Washington C.H. was knocked out at 4:04 p.m. when an unidentified problem developed in a 69,000-volt transmission line. Power to all the blacked-out communities except Jeffersonville was restored by 5:10 p.m.

Dayton Power and Light Co. workers rerouted transmission lines around the substation to return power to the affected areas. Workmen's efforts were hampered in Jeffersonville because the power lines were off the insulators, an official said.

Jerry Morgan, a Dayton Power and Light Co. representative in Dayton, explained that a faulty conductor on a high-voltage line just outside Jeffersonville was responsible for the outage. He said a 69,000 volt cable fell to the ground shorting out the Washington C.H. substation. He had no firm explanation for the condition of the conductor but said it had apparently been damaged by lightning, ice or a hunter's errant shot.

The outage of the Robinson Road substation in turn caused an overload on other stations, and the fuses in surrounding stations blew out in succession. There is a safeguard in each substation to prevent such a "domino effect," he said, but they are not completely dependable in wet or icy weather.

Morgan noted that the company was "lucky" the outage occurred when it did. Crews normally end their work day at 4:30 p.m., and if the failure had happened an hour later, power could not have been restored as quickly, he explained.

Several downtown Washington C.H. businesses closed early when the outage left employees sitting in the dark in front of useless electrical equipment. Their rejoicing may have been short lived, however, because the failure of traffic signals snarled downtown traffic.

Asked whether the more than 100,000 residents affected could expect to receive a "disrupted service rebate" on their next electrical bill, Morgan said they probably deserved it—but were also unlikely to get it.

ANOTHER AWARD WINNER — The Miami Trace High School Betty Crocker Family Leader of Tomorrow was recently announced as being senior Steven D. Paisley pictured talking with an administrative assistant at the school. It was also learned that Paisley is one of the top 25 state semi-finalists in the contest.

In Betty Crocker contests here

Male domination continues

By GEOFF MAVIS
Record-Herald Staff Writer

The final chapter in the annals of the male domination of the Betty Crocker Family Leader of Tomorrow award in Fayette County high schools can now be written.

Miami Trace High School senior Steven D. Paisley, son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Paisley, 10752 Allen Road, has now joined Washington High School senior Andy Merritt as a representative in the state finals. It was also learned Monday that Paisley is one of the top 25 finalists in the Betty Crocker competition for State Leader of Tomorrow award.

Paisley, who maintains a 3.92 average and is a semi-finalist in the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test, scored higher than 44 of his fellow classmates on the Betty Crocker exam. If he becomes a state winner, he will be furnished with an all-expense paid tour of Washington D.C.

Ranking fifth out of 243 seniors, Paisley is interested in all of his current high school courses, though future school requirements do not look so desirable. "I'm taking English composition next semester, and not looking forward to it," said the 17-year-old potential pharmacy major at Ohio Northern University, Ada.

Paisley enjoys photography as a hobby, using his talents to help in the production of the Miami Trace High School yearbook and the Miami Tracer page published in the Record-Herald. He maintains a darkroom in the basement of his brother's home.

A devotee of hiking, the former member of the Boy Scout Order of the Arrow has lately been too busy with other pursuits to participate in this pastime. However, last summer provided him with an opportunity to practice the sport as he travelled with 30 other Miami Trace High School students on a geographical, historical, and "general learning experience" trip of the southwestern states. The journey lasted 22 days, and one of the most important bits of knowledge gained by Paisley was "how to get along with 15 other people in one van."

It would appear that one of the most important ingredients of a Betty Crocker award winner would be a high proficiency in cooking. Luckily, such knowledge is not a prerequisite for the test-taking. If it were the case, perhaps more girls would have secured first place in the two high school competitions.

But for Paisley, culinary requirements would have cooked his goose. "When forced to fix my own meals at home, I usually live on peanut butter," he stated.

Patty Hearst trial jurors questioned

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst's long-awaited trial for bank robbery was to begin today under tight security, with jury selection likely to focus on attitudes toward kidnap victims, radicals and the wealthy.

Miss Hearst, meanwhile, was described by one of her attorneys, Albert Johnson, as "apprehensive as anyone in her position would be" as the trial approached.

Authorities said all spectators would be required to pass through a metal detector similar to those used at airports. As in all pretrial hearings, federal marshals were ordered stationed at every entrance to the 19th floor courtroom and to patrol the aisles inside.

The stage was set Monday when opposing attorneys submitted lengthy lists of proposed questions for prospective jurors to U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter. Following standard federal procedure, Carter, instead of the lawyers, will question potential jurors.

Miss Hearst, 21-year-old daughter of newspaper executive Randolph Hearst, was kidnapped by the Symbionese Liberation Army Feb. 4, 1974, and later proclaimed allegiance to the tiny band of terrorists. She was charged with helping the SLA rob a bank here in April 1974.

She was arrested here last Sept. 18 after a nationwide hunt.

The defense contends she was forced to make a tape saying she had joined the SLA and another recording admitting she robbed the bank of her own free will.

CANDLELIGHT LAW ENFORCEMENT — The power failure Washington C. H. and surrounding areas experienced late Monday afternoon didn't make law enforcement anymore romantic when officers of the city police department were forced to work by candlelight. However, they admitted it was a change of pace. Pictured are police jailer-dispatchers Steve Deere (foreground) and Mike Taylor.

Position prompted by request regarding programs for elderly

Commissioners express reluctance over accepting federal funding

BY GEORGE MALEK

The Fayette County Board of Commissioners explained Monday its reluctance to accept many types of federally funded programs. Comments by the commissioners prompted by a request to consider accepting federal funds for elderly residents.

While the commissioners stressed the point that they were not opposed to assisting Fayette County's elderly residents, they were opposed to programs for which federal funds rapidly diminish and local taxpayers are expected to assume the burden of continuing operation.

Representatives of the Central Ohio Area Agency on Aging, including two local ministers, met with the commissioners concerning the future of programs for the elderly in Fayette County.

At present, all federally funded programs for the elderly are administered by non-governmental organizations, and Mrs. Ardath H. Lynch, director of the Central Ohio Area Agency on Aging, asked how the commissioners would feel about receiving federal grant money directly and becoming responsible for the operation of programs.

On the surface, this would appear to be an offer "right up the commissioners' alley." They have often complained about "area" and "regional" planning groups which erode the local control of Fayette County program. Mrs. Lynch appealed to the commissioners sense of independence when she suggested that the money might be sent directly from the state office to the county commissioners for implementation of programs which they felt were best suited to the residents of Fayette County.

Presently, the state receives federal monies and disperses them to the state's 13 area agencies, Mrs. Lynch said. Fayette County is in an eight-county area which includes Franklin, Licking, Delaware, Fairfield, Pickaway, Madison and Union counties. The area agency then contracts with local organizations to provide services for Fayette County's elderly residents.

Despite the commissioners desire to have greater control over activities in Fayette County, they were strongly opposed to accepting responsibility for the programs. Commissioner Robert Mace gently presented the commissioners position by saying that the board was "cautious" when it knew funds for such programs were to gradually decline in coming years. He cited the Help Anonymous program, the federal funding for which is gradually decreased over a three-year period. The local community is expected to gradually accept financial responsibility.

Commissioner J. Herbert Perrill was more vocal in saying the same thing. Counties can actually "go broke" accepting funds, he said. Once the program is in operation and the federal funds disappear, the county is pressured into accepting financial responsibility, he said. This increases the local tax burden while federal taxes also continue to climb, Perrill added.

The least outspoken of the county commissioners, Ray Warner, echoed the same sentiments. He noted that there is a forceful push to cut federal spending currently in progress. This may well result in curtailment of funding for many of these programs. When these federal monies are withdrawn, the county just won't be able to finance the programs, he said. He concluded with emphasis that the county commissioners being offered administrative responsibility for these programs now is in itself evidence that federal funding is about to decline.

All three county commissioners agreed that they would not be able to continue many of the programs when federal support was withdrawn. They added that they would prefer the programs were never initiated than see them vanish when the money was gone.

The Rev. Ralph Wolford, chairman of the governing board of the Fayette County Community Action Commission, was annoyed with the commissioners' attitude. He said he felt as a taxpayer that the county should see to it that it received its fair share of the federal tax money paid by its residents. He cited the fact that the Meals on Wheels program operated through First Baptist Church was originally funded for only six months, but has been in operation for more than two years.

He said he was reluctant to initiate a program which would operate for only a few months. However, due to the success of the program, funding has continued, he said. Rev. Wolford indicated that even if the program's funding were to stop immediately, the efforts of the past two years would completely justify its existence. He obviously felt it was better to have a program for even a short time than to refuse funds offered to initiate the project.

The commissioners responded that in theory this might be the case. They noted, however, that they would find it extremely difficult to inform several hundred persons that there simply was no money available to continue a program upon which they had come to depend. Public pressure might often result in continuation of programs which the county really couldn't afford they said.

Postal service cutbacks seen without more funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service says it will have to cut back on some services, including Saturday mail delivery, unless Congress is willing to back the mails with the taxpayers' cash.

"We cannot continue to operate as now structured without additional appropriations from Congress," Richard F. Gould, the service's top financial officer, said Monday.

Gould commented before the Senate Post Office Committee opened hearings today on the financial situation of the Postal Service.

Postal Service officials are expected to warn the committee that failure to offer new subsidies will force an end of Saturday delivery and other service such as special delivery.

The committee is taking up a bill by

Chairman Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., to double the Postal Service's $1.5-billion annual subsidy over the next three years.

When Congress reorganized the old Post Office Department into the Postal Service in 1971, one of the goals for the new agency was financial self-sufficiency. The law provided for phasing out of subsidies and empowered the Postal Service to manage its own finances independently of Congress.

But the Postal Service has lost money every year since then. Last fiscal year, the deficit was a record $989 million and the Postal Service expects to lose $1.5 billion in the current fiscal year that ends June 30.

Despite some economy measures already taken, "we face the prospect of never having revenues in balance with our costs," said Gould, senior assistant postmaster general for finance.

Although the Postal Service increased the cost of mailing a first-class letter from 10 to 13 cents last month, the extra revenue is not enough to cover steadily increasing costs, Gould said.

Congressional sources said it would be difficult to get higher postal subsidies approved by Congress. The House twice voted down increases last fall, and President Ford opposes any increase.

As major reasons for the Postal Service's financial condition, Gould cited general inflation and the added cost of labor under contracts that call for cost-of-living increases, a decline in usage of the mails and the lengthy procedure for raising postal rates.

Office tower cash showdown set

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Democratic legislators have set Thursday for a showdown on mounting problems embroiling the financially plagued State Office Tower.

Majority Democratic members of the State Controlling Board balked Monday at a Rhodes Administration request for a $10 million transfer from the General Revenue Fund to pay private contractors for completed construction work. The budgetary maneuver was proposed because of a cash shortage caused by state's postponement last week of a $60 million capital improvements bond sale.

The entire chain of events is traceable to the debt-ridden 44-story office tower and its financial guardian, the Ohio Building Authority.

Gov. James A. Rhodes said the building's financial condition was so shaky that a bond sale could endanger the state credit rating. He called on the General Assembly to appropriate $12 million to bail out the building authority which oversees the tower's debt.

"I admit this does not solve the problem of financing the State Office Tower," Budget Director-designate William W. Wilkins said in presenting the administration request. "It only addresses the problem for the current biennium."

Wilkins said the $10 million would go for building projects already completed at 37 Ohio colleges and universities.

"If indeed all of our problems are predicated on the Ohio Building Authority's financial dilemma," asked Sen. Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown, "wouldn't it be more appropriate for some immediate confrontation with the OBA problem?"

The board decided it would and shelved the Rhodes request at least until the special Thursday meeting.

Before leaving the subject, Meshel, the Senate's majority whip, castigated Rhodes for "a very great disservice by proclaiming to the world that the State of Ohio has fiscal problems." The reference was to Rhodes' recommendation to put off the bond sale.

Control Board President Robert Howarth, who represents Rhodes on the watchdog finance panel, defended the governor's action: "One ounce of uncertainty means we ought to get out of the bond market."

Rhodes has said the eventual sale on the bonds will hinge on whether the legislature agrees to appropriate the $12 million.

The focus of the debate, the brownish-gray tower, was clearly visible from north window of the Statehouse committee room as the debate dragged on.

"It's time for some very important surgical work to solve the problem," Meshel finally decided. The board then turned to other matters.

Controllers pared a request by the Personnel Board of Review from $350,000 to $100,000. The board, which handles state-employee job disputes requested the money to help clear a backlog of appeals resulting from new civil service classification which took effect at the first of the year.

The $100,000 grant cut the state emergency purposes fund to $152,000 for the balance of the fiscal year (to July).

Board members waived competitive bidding, allowing the Ohio House Development Board to pay a Cincinnati law firm $20,000 to seek judicial review by the Ohio Supreme Court of the state housing law. The firm of Peck, Shaffer & Williams will ask the court whether it is legal for the state to issue revenue bonds to provide loans for low and middle income housing.

In other action, the board:

—Refused to allow the adjutant general to transfer $315,000 from his disaster relief fund for the construction of Hamilton Armory in Butler County. Legislators said the disaster surplus money—about $500,000 in all—should be funneled into the state General

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid charges and countercharges over the leakage of intelligence secrets turned over to the House intelligence committee, CIA director William E. Colby has acknowledged that he too was once an anonymous source for a newspaper story exposing CIA contacts with journalists.

Colby and other Ford administration officials accused the House panel Monday of violating its oath by disclosing top-secret intelligence operations contained in the committee's final report which was to be released this Friday but which was leaked to the news media over the weekend.

"The committee seems neither able to keep secrets nor its agreement," Colby told a news conference in one of his last official acts as head of the CIA.

Meanwhile, the Senate is expected to vote today to confirm former Republican national chairman George

Property tax proposal attacked

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State lawmakers, determined to do something about skyrocketing property taxes, have been accused of plunging "into a mad rush to escape irate taxpayers and find a scapegoat for past government errors."

The charge came Monday night from a varsity lobbying team of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, incensed about a proposed constitutional amendment to establish a special low tax rate for owner-occupied homesteads.

Ronald F. Budzik, chairman of the chamber's subcommittee on real property taxation and manager of state and local taxes for the Mead Corp., Dayton, testified before the Senate Ways and Means Committee.

He and other Columbus-based chamber lobbyists charged that the amendment would destroy "one of the finest systems of real property taxation in the nation, and effectively end any hope that Ohio can reverse the decline in its manufacturing jobs and tax base."

Sen. John T. McCormack, D-31 Euclid, the amendment sponsor, denied Budzik's allegation that business and industry are being singled out as the target for discriminatory taxation. His amendment, he said, is designed to empower the legislature to pass laws to give a break to elderly and middle class homeowners who have flooded the Statehouse with protest mail in recent weeks.

The committee deferred action on the proposal. McCormack and a co-sponsor, Sen. Robert D. Freeman, D-29 Canton, said privately that while they anticipated some objections to their amendment in the legislature, they plan to take it directly to the people on a statewide ballot if necessary.

Freeman, who also said he has been inundated with mail from taxpayers, predicted an easy campaign to collect enough signatures — probably around 300,000 — to put the amendment on the June 8 ballot.

"I could collect 35,000 signatures in Stark County alone," he said.

Their proposal is one of several now at various stages of consideration in the Senate and House, and Gov. James A. Rhodes has before the board of tax appeals an administrative rule change, expected to be acted upon favorably later this week, to freeze property tax valuations at their Jan. 1, 1975, levels. Many fear the governor's proposal would be unconstitutional, however, violating the existing constitutional mandate for all real property in Ohio to be taxed at a uniform rate.

Ohio counties have been undergoing property tax reappraisals in groups since the start of a statutory, six-year reappraisal cycle in 1972. Those already reappraised would not get the benefit of the Rhodes' freeze as now written.

Aside from those proposals, the House Ways and Means Committee tentatively scheduled a vote late today on a bill that would spare real estate taxpayers year-to-year increases resulting from inflated property values by providing a system of tax credits.

The House last week approved and sent the Senate a bill to give a five-year tax discount to homeowners for improvements they make to their property.

Another proposal, approved by the House and pending in the Senate, would reduce assessments for industries paying the tangible personal property tax.

Stock list takes dip

NEW YORK (AP) — A wave of early profit taking left the stock market with a modest loss today in continued active trading.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off .95 at 960.56, and losers held a 3-2 edge on gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Dow dropped more than 4 points in the early going, and then began a gradual recovery. Analysts said the market's swings reflected the continued pulling and tugging of profit-taking forces and buyers attracted by the 109-point runup in the Dow from the first of the year through Monday's close.

Citicorp paced the active list, up 1/4 at 297 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks lost .11 to 52.73. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index edged up .04 to 94.89.

Commissioners

Agency on Aging, presented a compromise position. He said he felt that federal funds should be utilized to initiate programs for the elderly. However, he apparently felt they should not come under the auspices of local government. If there is sufficient community support for a program to continue its operation when the federal funding ends, that's fine, he said. If, on the other hand, the program has not gained community support, it should be allowed to fold, he added.

The associate pastor of the Grace United Methodist Church indicated that the support for these programs should come largely from civic organizations, churches and other charitable groups. The church emphasis is to "help thy neighbor," he said, and such programs offer church people an excellent opportunity to put this concept into practice.

Perrill responded that his efforts toward helping his neighbor were assisting the "round-shouldered man next door who is bearing the tax burden."

The commissioners concluded that they would prefer to leave responsibility for the federal programs with the area agency on aging, and ask the Fayette County delegation to continue to present the needs of local residents to the agency.

Representing Fayette County on the Central Ohio Area Agency on Aging are Rev. Puffenberger, Mrs. Harry Stoughton, Miss Mary Frances Snider and George Lundberg. The alternates for each delegate respectively are Rev. Wolford, Mrs. George Naylor, Mrs. Vesper Flint and Elmer Reed. All eight persons have been active in the many programs for the elderly which have been initiated in the county. These include the Senior Nutrition program, the Senior Citizens Center, the Meals on Wheels, Outreach, Help Anonymous and provisions for transportation for the elderly among others.

Each of the seven smaller counties in the Central Ohio Area Agency on Aging have four representatives while Franklin County has 12. One of the requirements of the 40-member panel is that it have at least 51 per cent membership of persons 60 years of age or older.

Opinion And Comment

Men's wear liberation

The aloha shirt from Hawaii has been around for quite some time. Harry Truman used to sport one on Florida visits when he was president. But this colorful - some would say gaudy - item of apparel has been given special impetus in recent years by the Hawaiian garment industry's promotion of "Aloha Shirt Friday" in Honolulu.

By now the custom has become so well accepted that most of the city's men routinely wear such garb one day a week. Some of the less conventional opt for the freedom and gaiety of aloha shirts every day.

This phenomenon prompts comment on the men's wear situation back here in the 48 contiguous states. In general, men are freer and easier about what they wear than they were a couple of decades ago, even in the days when Truman was president. Yet the fact is that in most cities white collar workers still lean heavily toward conventional suit-and-tie garb when at work. Often it is expected of them, and some cases they would be fired if they didn't conform.

That is a little silly, given the variety of clothing now available for men. Why should business and professional men, and office workers generally, be limited to what is in effect a kind of uniform? Why not, instead, exercise the much wider freedom of choice now available to them - and not just on Fridays?

The argument used to be made, after World War I and on through the depressed 1930's, that there wasn't enough gold in the world to finance the expanding economies needed by constantly exploding populations.

Well, how much would be enough? And where is the dividing line between "enough" and "too much"?

After the Spanish conquest of Mexico and Peru there was too much Aztec and Inca bullion for Europe to digest. The resulting high price rises caused great hardships and, incidentally, helped ruin the Spanish nation.

On the other hand, gold production in the late 19th century in the U.S. wasn't enough to keep prices from falling. Depressions came with periodic regularity. There was the agitation for Free Silver. William Jennings Bryan almost won on the silver issue in 1896. He would undoubtedly have become President later on if metallurgists hadn't discovered the cyanide process to get gold cheaply from low grade ores. The new process happily coincided with the Klondike gold rush and the development of the South African Rand.

Nobody can predict what will happen from a new discovery in metallurgy until the "costing out" experts have had some trial-and-error efforts to assess. But what would happen now if something much better than the cyanide process and its derivatives should come along? With gold more readily available, the treasuries of the world might feel better about returning to a hard currency base. But a superfluity of gold could itself become a cause of renewed price inflations. The higher mathematics involved in this would necessarily depend on hundreds of unforeseen contingencies, but we can be sure of one thing: there would be a terrible scramble among the speculators.

Such a scramble may be just over the horizon if some new patents taken out by former Navy Lt. Comdr. Fritz Wanzenberg mean what is claimed for them. Wanzenberg is an oceanographer who was in charge of the electronic protection of U.S. warships in World War II. He has a background as a mining equipment designer for Kennecott Copper and the American Metal Climax Corporation. In short, he is no kook.

As an oceanographer Wanzenberg was impressed by the fact that the ocean contains 44 pounds of gold per cubic mile. It is too costly to get at when it appears in such dilute form. But nature, by a mysterious process of ion exchange, has concentrated gold in the so-called carbonaceous ores that used to be the world's sea beds. The phenomena connected with ion exchange are hardly matters for a 720-word column, but Wanzenberg's patents for burning the graphite in unoxidized carbonaceous deposits and getting out the gold are based on demonstration. The commercial cost of exploiting them, of course, is quite another matter.

The most astounding Wanzenberg feature is one that depends on vaporization. This process ignites the ore, converts its metal particles into a mist, and then collects the metals - including silver - in sequence as each metal vapor cools at a different temperature.

As a distinct non-expert in such things as ion exchange, metal vaporization, the extent of carbonaceous ore beds, the availability of capital for new mining ventures, and scores of other aspects of the business of making a precious metal a little less precious, I would not presume to make a prediction on the basis of the Wanzenberg patents. But what if we are on the verge of another big turnover in a fundamental technology?

There is more than gold involved here. If other metals in the carbonaceous beds suddenly become more available along with gold, what could happen to all those gloomy predictions made by the Club of Rome and other prophets of scarcity?

It would be back to the drawing boards for more than the monetary experts. There could be economic and political chaos.

Ohio Perspective

Myths influencing tax policy?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — While state government officials wrestle with the complexities of Ohio's tax structure, an Ohio State economist says "four myths" continue to influence tax policy decisions.

"These are widely held but mistaken beliefs that influence tax policy-making in directions that seem to me to be harmful to the state's economy and the citizens of Ohio," Dr. Frederick D. Stocker says.

The number one myth, and the hardest for most Ohioans to accept, is that Ohio taxes are not high.

"There is probably no taxpayer anywhere in the country who does not feel that he is overtaxed," Stocker told the legislature's Joint Economic Conference. "Ohioans have substantially less basis for this opinion than citizens of most other states."

According to Stocker, Ohio in 1973-74 was 42nd among 50 states in total general revenue per capita from tax sources.

In fact, he contended, "there was no category of public revenue (tax money) in which Ohio was even close to the national per capita average. In terms of revenue per $1,000 personal income, Ohio remains where it was before 1971—at or next to the lowest in the nation."

Stocker, a professor of economics and public administration who helped frame the state income tax law in 1971, says the income tax has proven to be "one of the most innocuous taxes of its sorts in the nation."

"Only at the low end of the income scale (under $5,000), where Ohio collects small positive amounts of tax while many other states either impose none or offer rebates, are Ohio effective rates above the median for income tax states," he said.

Stocker's second myth is that "taxes imposed on business are somehow not paid by ordinary people."

Rubbish, he says. "In the final analysis, all taxes reduce the real income of some real, live person...in the form of higher prices...lower earnings...or reduced net earnings."

Myth number three: Stocker argues that proposals for selective tax exemptions, tax rebates and tax freezes is a dangerous approach to economic development.

"An attitude of skepticism is especially appropriate with respect to claims that tax reduction will stimulate economic development to the degree that more revenue will be collected rather than less," he said. "Far more likely, in my judgment, tax abatement devices produce little results but can be very costly in terms of lost revenue, which must be made up by other tax payers."

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Child's 'Leash'

may be lifesaver

DEAR ABBY: May I please respond to INDIGNANT MOTHER, who tried to justify placing her child in a harness to save him from being lost or run over, or falling down a flight of stairs?

A child should be taught not leashed! To defend using a harness by saying it's for the child's protection is a cop-out used by parents who are too lazy or busy to look after their own children. There is no substitute for a mother's personal attention.

Of course, unkind remarks from strangers are out of place, but someone should open the eyes of mothers who put leashes on children. Maybe the mothers should put on THEMSELVES and be walked through the stores and airports for their "protection." Adults also get lost, run over and fall down stairs.

I say, God giveth and God taketh away, harness or no harness.

UNLEASHED IN OKLAHOMA
DEAR UNLEASHED: Please read on for another point of view.

DEAR ABBY: This is for INDIGNANT MOTHER, who was frequently subjected to insults from strangers because she used a harness on her 2-year-old child.

I, too, used a harness, and a plain, old-fashioned dog leash on my two children when they were toddlers. They were 11 months apart in age and quite a handful. While I worked in the yard or hung my clothes outside, I'd clip their harnesses to the clothes line so they could run and play within safe limits.

While shopping with my harnessed youngsters, I collected many cold stares from strangers. Some even reminded me that I was raising children-not dogs.

Then, something happened that made it easier for me to bear those insults. A beautiful, 2-year-old neighbor girl was killed. Two minutes earlier, she was beside her mother in the kitchen. There was one broken-hearted mother, one dead child and one unsuspecting driver who didn't see the wee curly head dart from between two parked cars until he felt the thump of a wheel go over her little body.

That was 25 years ago. Today I am the mother of two living children and six grandchildren, and I thank God that He gave me the intelligence to value the lives of my children above the criticism of a few "know-it-alls."

Indignant mother, forget your indignation and rock your living baby to sleep. Keep him harnessed until he's old enough to understand simple danger. It's much better than carrying flowers to a small grave.

MRS. O.K. IN VA.

DEAR ABBY: Bravo to the mother who uses a harness on her small child! Many mothers don't use one because they are afraid of appearing "cruel."

As a physical therapist, I have treated many small children for dislocated shoulders caused by impatient parents who have literally pulled their children's arms out of their sockets holding onto their hands in traffic.

A dislocated shoulder can go undetected for a long time while causing much damage and discomfort.

Wendy's Old Fashioned Hamburger restaurant

New restaurant opens Wednesday

The new Wendy's Old Fashioned Hamburger Restaurant, located on Columbus Avenue near the Washington Square Shopping Center, will open at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday.

The new fast-food restaurant, which is situated on a 31,207-square foot lot owned by Columbus real estate developer William Hadler, has been under construction here since late August.

The 2,100-square foot restaurant building, constructed at an estimated cost of $100,000, is located on a lot immediately east of the Goodyear service store on Columbus Avenue.

The restaurant will open at 10:30 a.m. daily and remain open until 10 p.m. weekdays and 11 p.m. on weekends.

Eugene F. Imbrogno, president of Wendy's of West Virginia, Inc., which owns and will operate the Washington C.H. restaurant, said that the facility will provide 40 new jobs for local residents.

In addition to a drive-up window service, the restaurant will feature an interior dining area. Thirty-eight off-street parking spaces have also been provided with an entrance and exit off Columbus Avenue.

"We fix hamburger 256 ways, and every one is made to order with a choice of eight different condiments in any combination of quarter-pound, half-pound and three-quarter pound sizes," said R. David Thomas, who founded the parent company, Columbus-based Wendy's International, Inc.

Wendy's International, Inc. opened its first restaurant in Columbus in 1969. The chain now operates over 250 restaurants.

Don Gussler will manage the Washington C.H. restaurant.

Gag order issued in Cincinnati probe

CINCINNATI (AP) — A gag order was issued in the case of a Columbus, Ohio publisher and evidentiary arguments were scheduled for six policemen seeking reinstatement of pay in separate developments in the scandal probe of the Cincinnati police department.

Hamilton County Common Pleas Court Judge William Morrissey Monday barred court clerks from releasing any prosecution evidence to newsmen in the cases of Larry Flynt, publisher of the "Hustler" magazine and owner of a Cincinnati bar by the same name, and Flora Griffith Flynt.

Their attorneys argued that release of forthcoming bills of particulars in the cases would damage their chances of fair trials.

Similar reports on the cases of suspended Police Chief Carl Goodin and six indicted officers were released last week by Hamilton County Prosecutor Simon Leis Jr.

The bills, detailing evidence which led to indictments, were requested by defense lawyers, Leis said. Leis said the bills were "public record."

Flynt was indicted on charges of bribery in supplying prostitutes for police officers in return for lack of enforcement of liquor violations. He was named in a separate indictment with Flora Griffith Flynt on a charge of sodomy.

Fraternal Order of Police attorney Donald Hardin asked the court to order acting Police Chief Myron Leistler and city officials to release evidence against the indicted policemen to the defense today.

Hardin said the officers need to know the nature of departmental investigation information against them to defend themselves before the Cincinnati Civil Service Commission.

The officers are seeking reinstatement or reinstatement of pay while their cases are in litigation. All were suspended Dec. 17 when indictments were returned against them by a special Hamilton County grand jury.

Hardin said Leisler refused to divulge evidence against the officers in dispositions taken last week. Hardin said the men were suspended without being informed of charges against them, other than indictments had been returned.

City workers face dismissal

YOUNGSTOWN (AP) — Youngstown Mayor Jack Hunter says dismissal notices have been mailed to about 75 city workers who stayed off the job Monday in a sick-call work stoppage.

City officials said most of the 1,200 union members working for the city ignored picket lines, and the strike had little effect on city operations.

The picket lines were set up by family members and friends of the striking workers in the airport, street and water departments. A law department spokesman said workers who refused to cross picket lines of Community Workers Association Local 14 would be docked one day's pay.

New children's blood fund started by Ohio couple

CINCINNATI (AP) — Children with blood diseases, whose parents have no hope of ever replacing large amounts of needed plasma, would be assured of needed supplies under a new blood fund sponsored by a Moscow, Ohio, couple.

The need for this type of fund has been obvious for many years, according to Joe Costa, supervisor of the Paul I. Hoxworth Blood Center at the University of Cincinnati Medical Center.

Mr. and Mrs. William Winters, Moscow, Ohio, asked the center to host the program named for their granddaughter, Ann Folts. The six-year old died of leukemia at Children's Hospital in Cincinnati Nov. 18, 1975, owing 118 pints of blood.

Friends, relatives and church groups were able to replace the needed blood. The Winters, meanwhile, learned of the plight of parents of other children while their granddaughter was hospitalized and decided to establish the Ann Folts Memorial Blood Drive for Childhood Diseases.

Blood center coordinator Sherry Hildebrand said of the parents of hemophiliac and leukemia children must be assured of supplies and should be spared of the grief of replacing it or paying for it.

"Knowing they owe you a hundred pints of blood can be a heavy burden — especially when you realize a pint of blood is worth $30, she said."

Costa said some 80 children in the Cincinnati area owe at least 20 pints each to the center. One boy has used 1,165 pints while others require only four pints to several hundred annually.

Costa said that 44,000 pints were used in 1974, with 11,485 going to hemophiliac children alone. Only 3,102 units have been replaced.

Utility bill criticized by league

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An Ohio Municipal League spokesman says a House bill revising the formula for calculating utility rate request data is more favorable to the utilities than present law.

Richard M. Fanelly, public utilities director of the City of Akron and chairman of the league's energy task force, referred to a bill nearing a vote in the House Insurance, Utilities, and Financial Institutions Committee.

In a prepared statement, Fanelly told the committee that the pending measure would repeal existing statutes traditionally relied upon by Ohio's cities to fix utility rate for gas and electric utilities.

The bill replaces the existing "RCN" rate formula with a so-called fair value formula which includes construction work in progress in the value of utility property upon which a new rate would be determined. Under RCN (reconstruction costs new, less depreciation), the utilities use what it would cost to replace existing equipment at current value.

Fanelly said Ohio's consumers would be better protected if the bill, in its present form, were defeated because a utility "could ignore the legitimate concerns of locally elected officials, a situation that is clearly detrimental to local consumers of gas and electric services."

Cleveland acquires old submarine

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland has acquired a submarine, complete with torpedo tubes.

The USS Cod has been turned over to the Cleveland Coordinating Committee for the Cod, which had raised $25,000 in public contributions to save the World War II vintage sub from the scrap heap.

Transfer papers from the Navy were handed over to the committee's chairman, Rear Adm. Richard Freundlich, ret., in ceremonies Sunday.

Fayette County history highlighted by Mr. Robinson

Fourteen members and one guest of the Martha Washington Committee on Indian Affairs, Daughters of the American Revolution, met in the home of Mrs. Harold Slagle for the January meeting when they heard about early Fayette County history. The business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Robert Harris, vice chairman, with Mrs. Howard Perrill as acting secretary.

Mrs. Slagle, Regent, announced that the Washington C.H. DAR chapter will meet in the home of Mrs. Howard Perrill at 2 p.m. Feb. 2, when the guest speaker will be Mr. Donald Moore. She also announced that on Feb. 21 the annual MW DAR Tea will be held in Grace United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Harris welcomed Mrs. L.M. Slagle as a guest for the afternoon.

Guest speaker Mr. George Robinson gave the history of Fayette County, and reminded the members that the county was named after Marquis de La Fayette. At one time, Fayette County was named Little Bristle, and was formed from a part of Ross County, which was called Bib Bristle. He told of some of the early settlers whose names were: George Compton, the Funk Family, Harness Family, Abner Todhunter, Violet Feagans and Robert Dobbins. Mr. Robinson stated that in 1800 the recorded population of the county was 6,336, in 1840 the population had doubled and in 1880 there were 20,000 population recorded. He also told of the devastation done by the cyclone in 1885. His presentation was very well received. An interesting question and answer period followed.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Slagle from a very lovely appointed table. She was assisted by Mrs. Harris, Mrs. Cecil VanZant and Mrs. Donald Pierce.

Americana

Handbags for the Bicentennial

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

A HANDBAG is a handbag is a Bicentennial conversation piece when it's from the new Americana collection by Harry Rosenfeld, Inc.

These bags, each featuring an authentic reproduction of 18th century American hardware, will delight antique buffs. The hardware, researched with the aid of the Wadsworth Atheneum of Hartford, Conn., is eye-catching.

None of the reproductions used was designed originally with fashion in mind but, in the hands of Rosenfeld stylists, such utilitarian designs as a whiffle-tree (part of a horse's harness arrangement) and a sheep's hobble (used to prevent the animal from going through or over fences) add decorative touches of yesterday to handbags for today.

Old Locks and Hinges

A bolt lock, found on the garden gate of a Moravian Sister's home in Bethlehem, Pa., (circa 1750) now bolts a roomy handbag shut. A cockshead hinge—the original found on a Salem door (circa 1780) — provides another unique touch.

While many of the reproductions are functional — the sheep's hobble joins shoulder straps to bag, the lock is used as a bolt-some are merely decorative, such as an escutcheon plate picturing a Hessian soldier, (circa 1790), featured on one bag's front flap.

REPRODUCTIONS of 18th century designs star on new handbags. Top, bolt lock (circa 1750); center, a cocks-head hinge (circa 1780); bottom, escutcheon plate showing soldier.

MR. AND MRS. DOUGLAS PITZER

Miss Linda Cox is bride of Mr. Douglas Pitzer

Miss Linda Cox, daughter of Mrs. Carol Cox and the late James Cox, of near Jeffersonville, became the bride of Mr. Douglas Pitzer, son of the Mr. and Mrs. Edward Pitzer, also of near Jeffersonville.

The double-ring ceremony was performed in the Bookwalter Church of Christ by the Rev. Wayne Knisley, pastor of the church, Jan. 2.

Music was provided by Mrs. David Reed.

The bride was lovely in her antique satin gown trimmed with lace on the bodice and sleeves. She carried a bouquet of painted daisies with satin streamers and her only jewelry was a gold cross necklace, a gift from the groom. Her gown had a square neckline and wide bands of lace enhanced the full skirt. The sleeves were long and fitted.

Miss Cox was given in marriage by her uncle, Roger Cox, and Mrs. Beverly Cox served as matron of honor. Karl Johnson, brother of the groom, served as best man. Seating the wedding guests were Private James L. Cox of New Jersey and Specialist A. Frank Cox, of Hawaii, brothers of the bride.

Mrs. Pitzer is a student at Miami Trace High School and her husband is engaged in farming.

The couple was honored at a reception held in the home of the groom's parents. They are presently residing on Wesley Chapel Road near Bookwalter.

Sweet Adelines plan meeting in Hillsboro

Women interested in singing barbershop harmony are invited to the Hillsboro Presbyterian Church at 8 p.m. Thursday, when a Sweet Adeline Chapter will be organized by Mrs. Pat Dorsey. She will introduce barbershop music to the group and this will be a time to discuss a permanent meeting place and time. A Chorus director is also needed, and anyone interested in learning to direct four part music, barbershop style, should contact Mrs. Dorsey at 120 Meadow Lane, Hillsboro, Hillsboro.

Church Women United to meet

Mr. Tom Mossbarger will be guest speaker for the annual Church Women United Meeting to be held at 2 p.m. Friday, Jan. 30, in First Baptist Church. Music will be provided by the Cecilian Double Trio. All women of the area are invited to attend.

What do you want your clothes to do for you and for your family? Are they doing it & if not, what can you do to make each family member's clothes work for him or for her?

Chances are the clothes aren't working very well if you make the above complaint. This seldom means that you really have no clothes to wear; it means that you don't feel well-dressed or confident in your clothes. Maybe the clothes don't fit. Maybe they aren't as fashionable as you want. Maybe they aren't becoming in style, texture, or color. Maybe you have nothing that is appropriate to wear to a particular place or special event.

Or perhaps the clothes need some repair - a zipper replaced or a seam restitched. Oftentimes a person has a lot of clothes but has failed to put them together in outfits that are coordinated for a total look. Examine your clothes and accessories. Decide what else is needed for them to work in your wardrobe.

Maybe you don't need traditional clothes in your wardrobe. For instance, do you have to have a business suit to be well-dressed for your job? Or for your church? Or for your social life? If not, don't buy it. A wardrobe that works for you should have complete outfits that will take you where you want to go and need to go, giving you a feeling of well-being.

To help you go through the wardrobe planning process for that well-dressed look, be sure to enroll now in our "Wardrobe That Works" independent study course that you complete at home in your leisure.

Lessons included are: 1 - "Look at Yourself" which will help you examine personal coloring figure lines and fashion needs.

2 - "Shape Up Your Plan" provides guidelines for your wardrobe's new look.

3 - "Ship Out or Reshape" gives resources and directions for recycling those garments you are not wearing.

4 - "Build On For a Complete Wardrobe" shows you how to use fashion scarves for many new looks as well as make other fashion additions to complete your outfits.

You will receive booklets on fashion trends, clothing repair, stain removal, recycling ideas, decorative directions for patchwork and quilting, tying scarves and ties. Maternity wardrobe suggestions and other clothing helps will be available upon request.

Registration fee to cover cost of materials for the entire course is only $1.00. To enroll, send the attached coupon plus $1.00 to: The Fayette County Extension Service, 319 South Fayette Street, Washington C.H., Ohio 43160. The Fayette County Cooperative Extension Service is Part of The Ohio State University and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

CLEANING SUEDE SHOES

To get a head start on putting your wardrobe in working order, let's start by getting those suede shoes back in condition. Follow these steps to keep them staying nice longer.

Use a light touch when cleaning suede shoes, but do clean them! Regular care keeps suede shoes looking pretty, but a light touch in the cleaning process protects the nap.

Brush suede shoes regularly with a terry towel or soft bristle suede brush to keep dust from settling deep in the nap. Don't use hard or scratchy brushes—they may damage the suede. Gently use an emery board to raise the surface of "brushed" suede.

A soft gum eraser will remove spots and light stains. Or you can use a little bit of drycleaning or suede cleaning fluid. Follow directions carefully! Apply any cleaning fluid sparingly and rub lightly with a clean, soft cloth.

If shoes are heavily soiled, check at your local shoe repair shop about professional cleaning. Color can be retouched in the cleaning treatment. Try to prevent heavy soiling if possible—often such soil can't be removed completely and the suede may be permanently damaged.

VFW Auxiliary schedules AFS students to speak

American Field Service exchange students Dominique Blanke of Belgium, and Ross Brown of New Zealand, will be guest speakers when the Burnett-Ducey VFW Auxiliary 4964 meets for a potluck supper at 6:30 p.m. Monday, Feb. 2 in the VFW Hall, W. Elm St.

The AFS students will present a program telling of their home countries, etc.

The total Indian population of Ohio at the beginning of the Revolutionary War has been estimated at only about 6,000, which was one Indian to every seven square miles. No census was ever taken but other historians have estimated that Ohio's Indian population never exceeded 15,000.

Rain sweeps over east; plains cold

By The Associated Press
Rain hit the East today, as clear skies and cold temperatures covered Plains and warm weather spread across the Northwest.
Rain fell throughout the Atlantic Coast states, in the central and southern portions of the Appalachians and over Alabama.

Dense fog with visibilities near zero in some places extended from New England to Virginia making travel extremely hazardous early today.
The spread of relatively mild air over New England has brought an end to the freezing rain that plagued the area Monday.
However, colder air produced some snow over Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and in the northern portion of Michigan.

Clear skies and cold temperatures spread across most parts of the Plains and Mississippi Valley today. Temperatures dropped below zero from the eastern Dakotas into Wisconsin and Northern Illinois.

WASHINGTON C. H., OHIO

MARY MORRIS, AUDITOR
FAYETTE COUNTY, OHIO

NOTICE--GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS TO TAXPAYERS--IMPORTANT

REAL ESTATE stands charged on the County Treasurer's books in the name of the owner January 1, 1975. Property purchased after this date will not appear on the tax books in the new name until the records are received for the year 1975.

The above rates are used to determine the tax on GENERAL PERSONAL property. The return must be filed with the County Auditor between February 15th and April 30th of each year.

In making request for tax bills be sure to give sufficient description so that the property may be located in the records and be sure all real estate is included as the Treasurer is not responsible for omissions.

TV Viewing

By LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Norman Lear didn't buy it when TV Guide magazine reported last December that a nationwide survey it had commissioned found a whopping 82 per cent of the adult population in favor of television's controversial "family viewing" policy.

That's the plan that restricts TV programming between the hours of 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. — 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. in the Central Time Zone — to material that is "inoffensive to a general family audience." The idea is to reduce the amount of sex and violence on the air.

The magazine's findings must have been a blow to the Writers Guild, Directors Guild and Screen Actors Guild, which have filed suit against the policy on grounds it is censorship and violates the First Amendment. They certainly looked to be in a small minority.

Lear, who brought "All in the Family" to American television and currently supervises production of six other TV comedies as well (including "Maude" and "Good Times"), wasn't convinced. He hired a former MIT and UCLA professor who specializes in testing the validity of other people's surveys to analyze the TV Guide data, which the magazine had sent him as a courtesy.

"The reason I did this was that I looked at the article and laughed at the basic foolishness on which the research was based," Lear was saying the other day after he'd received his man's report.

The conclusion of Lee Christie: "The resounding 'yes' is rather hollow!"

What really got Lear was the finding that 58 per cent of the 1,024 persons interviewed had never heard of Family Viewing Time. It was only after the policy was defined for them that the subjects were asked if they favored or opposed it. Then the pro vote was 82 per cent.

"That's like the other side of the 'Do you still beat your wife?' question," said Lear. "What kind of an individual who doesn't know that much about it is going to say they don't like something called Family Viewing Time?"

"They are the same people who would say that they don't like America, they don't like Mom and they don't like apple pie!"

And true enough, Christie's breakdown does show that about 59 per cent of the people who said they approved of Family Viewing Time had admitted not knowing what it was initially. Only 7 per cent of the interview subjects had said they were very familiar with it.

Christie found further evidence of what he said was ignorance and confusion about the policy's impact. For although 82 per cent said they favored the concept as it was defined for them, 69 per cent said they would rather see each family decide for itself what to watch rather than allow someone else to impose stricter control on television content — precisely what Family Viewing Time represents.

Fats, oils production sets mark

WASHINGTON (AP) — World production of fats and oils this year is estimated at a record of 48.6 million metric tons, up 6 per cent from calendar 1975, including larger output of certain items which will mean stiffer competition for U.S. soybean producers, according to the Agriculture Department.

The department's Foreign Agricultural Service said that key factors in the larger 1976 fats and oils production include:

—A near-record U.S. soybean crop which will provide 23 per cent more oil than the reduced 1974 harvest.

—More Brazilian soybeans, which will contribute 20 per cent more oil.

A 28 per cent increase in oil from a larger peanut crop in India.

—About 15 per cent more palm oil from major producers, including Malaysia and other tropical countries.

Of the total, U.S. fats and oils production this year — which include animal fats as well as oil from oilseeds — is expected to account for more than 11.5 million tons and foreign countries nearly 37.1 million tons. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds.

Exports of U.S. fats and oils are expected to total 4.25 million tons this year, only a slight increase from 4.1 million in calendar 1975 and still substantially below the 5.2 million tons exported in 1974, the agency said.

The net effect of rising world production is that the United States will no longer be "the only store on the block" when it comes to importing countries shopping for fats and oils.

Over 100 persons register for Community Ed courses

Despite the power outage, over 100 area residents signed up for the Community Education program's winter classes Monday night at the Washington C.H. Middle School.

Community Education program director Hank Shaffer hopes the turnout for registration will increase tonight. Prospective students may register between 7 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. in the Middle School cafeteria.

Several classes offered will allow students to determine the night to meet. Those classes include Fayette County history, model building, poster making, water and boat safety and money management.

The remainder of the courses will be scheduled nights during the week.

Firemen respond to three alarms

Washington C. H. firemen received three fire calls Monday.

The first was at 4:10 p.m. at the Ann Elcess residence, 636 Willabar Drive. Firemen reported a furnace malfunction created smoke within the residence, but there was no fire.

At 4:43 p.m. firefighters were summoned to the Pauline Gordon residence, 1117 Gregg St., because of smoke within her home. Firemen could not find what caused the smoke, but reported no damage from it.

An accident at the intersection of Third and Vine streets at 4:44 p.m. resulted in a ruptured gas tank for one of the drivers involved. Firemen were asked to standby in case the gas ignited. It didn't. The auto which had a ruptured gas tank belonged to James Massie, 529½ Third St.

Flax was once an important crop in Ohio, spun and woven in the home and made into linen for the household. In 1869 Ohio produced 80 million pounds of flax fiber. This was reduced to two million pounds by 1886 due to cheaper gunny cloth from the East Indies which resulted in closing down of the state's flax mills.

Via color slide show

Kiwanis Club members tour areas of France

An American Field Service foreign exchange student from France took the Washington C. H. Kiwanis Club on a tour of her native land by way of colored slides at the club's weekly meeting Monday in the Terrace Lounge.

Marie Hatighuais, an AFS student at Washington Senior High School who is staying with the John Stimpert family, told of her hometown, a suburb of Rouen, and the area of Normandy.

Highlighting the tour were scenes of cathedrals, museums, market places and modern shopping centers. She touched briefly on school life in France saying that French teachers expect more from their students than American teachers. A student's chief transportation to and from school is by motor bike, because of the lack of school buses.

A question and answer period was held after the slide show.

Items of business reviewed at the meeting included the increase of advertising rates for the annual teen talent program, and two directors, Ken Hughes and Leonard Korn, were elected.

Guests attending the meeting were Mrs. John Stimpert, Kathy Stimpert, Ethel Herman, Mrs. Ora Burdge, Sam Miller and Miami Trace Key Club members Dave Ritenour and Dan LeBeau.

Next week's meeting has been designated as ladies night. Howard and Jean Ford will present a combined program — Jean on her European tour and Howard on mountain climbing.

House expected to vote ban on American aid to Angola

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is expected to join the Senate and vote a ban on continued military aid to Western-backed factions in the Angolan civil war.

The issue is scheduled to be raised when the House takes up the $90-billion defense appropriation bill today. That bill contains a Senate-approved amendment to prohibit U.S. funds from being used for the fighting in the south-west African nation.

Appropriations Committee Chairman George Mahon said he expects the amendment to be approved by the House today "by a wide margin."

In another development, Rep. Don Bonker, D-Wash., said Monday that he had 200 cosponsors to a resolution advising President Ford not to aid any military faction in Angola unless the Congress specifically approves such assistance. Bonker said he considered the support for his resolution indicative as to how the vote on the funds will go.

The administration has included $28 million in the defense appropriations bill for support of the Western-backed National Front for the Liberation of Angola (FNLA) and its ally, the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola (UNITA). The Soviet Union has been supplying arms, and Cuba has sent men, to the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA).

A fund cutoff would affect only direct appropriations to Angola. Bonker has voiced concern that U.S. funds could be channeled through Zaire for use in continued support of the anti-Soviet factions.

Monday, the State Department's assistant secretary of state for African affairs, William E. Schaefe, told the House International Relations Committee that U.S. efforts to aid the two Angolan factions were a response to Soviet and Cuban military intervention.

"We must recognize that the Soviet Union has strained the fabric of detente by its lack of restraint and unilateral actions in Angola," he said. "We were not hostile to the MPLA before it decided to impose its rule on the strength of Soviet and Cuban bayonets."

Schaefe described Angola as a demonstration by the Soviet Union as to how it will use what he said was power only recently gained "to intervene militarily anywhere in the world...."

"If we allow the Soviet Union to get away with this intervention 8,000 miles from its borders" Moscow will be encouraged to try similar forays elsewhere in the world, Schaefe told the committee.

It was either too warm or too cold in parts of Ohio to please safety officials Monday, but a cold front moving across the state today promised to solve at least part of their problems.

Temperatures in the upper 50s Monday in the Ohio River Valley were blamed for fog that caused a chain reaction collision involving seven trucks and five cars. Police in the Columbiana County town of Wellsville said five persons were injured, two seriously.

A chance of rain or snow Thursday and Friday. Fair Saturday. Highs in the 30s Thursday, rising to the 40s by Saturday. Low 15 to 25 Thursday and in the 30s Friday and Saturday.

Hung jury possible in factory arson

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — After eight days of deliberations produced only four verdicts, lawyers and defendants say the Sponge Rubber Products Co. arson trial may end in a hung jury.

The U.S. District Court jury has convicted two men, including a Tennessee minister reputed to be a psychic, and has acquitted the principal owner of the Shelton company along with another defendant. But five men remained on trial as jurors returned to deliberations today.

The jury said Monday its 12 members had "too many interpretations" of the cases, then recessed after a second day without returning any verdicts.

Some defendants and their lawyers said there were signs the jurors could become deadlocked, or hung, on some or all defendants because of complexities in the case of the factory destroyed March 1.

Defendant Peter Betres, a hotel owner from Butler, Pa., told reporters Monday the jurors seemed to have a "conscience" that was preventing them from returning more convictions. "They're like a salad — all mixed up," he said.

On trial with Betres and Ronald D. Betres, also of Butler, Albert R. Coffey of Cleveland, Ohio; Michael J. Tiche of Boyers, Pa., and Anthony A. Just of Greensburg, Pa.

They are accused of joining in a plot led by the Rev. David N. Bubar, an adviser to Charles Moeller, the president of Sponge Rubber's parent firm. Moeller was acquitted and Bubar was convicted of four arson-related counts.

Hoosiers nab all but one top vote

By The Associated Press

Top-ranked Indiana continues its domination of The Associated Press Top 20, receiving all but one of the first-place ballots from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

In the shuffle behind the Hoosiers, Marquette, Nevada-Las Vegas and North Carolina moved up one spot each to the Nos. 2, 3 and 4 positions as Maryland, second a week ago, lost to Clemson and North Carolina last week and dropped to seventh.

Also taking a nosedive following losses were UCLA, from sixth to 12th; St. John's, from ninth to 14th, and Wake Forest, from 14th all the way out of the Top 20.

Indiana boosted its record to 16-0 by beating Purdue and Minnesota last week, then notched victory No. 17 Monday night — an 88-73 decision over Iowa. The Hoosiers held a solid lead over Marquette, 1,198 points to 970.

Marquette scored easy victories over Xavier of Ohio, Creighton and Fordham last week to boost its record to 14-1, while Nevada-Las Vegas, 20-0, whipped Nevada-Reno twice and picked up the other first-place ballot.

Rutgers, seventh last week, jumped to fifth with a 15-0 record while Washington, 16-1, won twice at Hawaii and moved up from eighth to sixth.

Following Maryland in the Top Ten were North Carolina State, 13-2; Tennessee, 14-2, and Notre Dame, 11-3.

Alabama, which won twice, heads the second 10, followed by UCLA; Missouri; St. John's; Michigan; Oregon State; Princeton, a newcomer to the standings which upset St. John's 58-55 in overtime; Cincinnati; Centenary, another newcomer, and West Texas State and Virginia Tech, which tied for 20th.

The Top Twenty teams in The Associated Press college basketball poll with first-place votes in parentheses, season records through Sunday and total points. Points based on 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1:

Ray Scott kicked out

DETROIT (AP) — Ray Scott, the only Detroit Pistons coach ever to compile a winning record, was fired Monday because of what management described as a communications breakdown.

The National Basketball Association team's general manager, Oscar Feldman, said that breakdown was the reason Scott was fired as coach, not the team's injury-riddled 17-25 season.

Assistant coach Herb Brown, who joined the Pistons staff last summer, will coach the team for at least the rest of this season.

Scott, who was named NBA Coach of the Year in 1974, was notified of his release by Feldman and the major owners during a Pistons practice session at a suburban Detroit high school.

Feldman would not specify the area of the breakdown with Scott. "It was between Ray and the entire organization — management, staff and players... I don't want to go into specifics. I don't think it would be fair to Ray or the team," Feldman said late Monday.

The other two club owners are Bill Davidson and Herb Tyner. Feldman said the remaining portions of Scott's contract would be honored. He was in the second year of a three-year pact.

Scott's relationships with the players, once considered a big part of his success, had deteriorated in the last two seasons.

Last year he had disagreements with Don Adams and Dave Bing. Adams later was cut from the team and Bing was traded at the end of the season.

NFC victorious in Pro Bowl

'Mike Special' leads grid win

By KEVIN MCKEAN
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — "It's just go down to the fire hydrant and turn left," laughed Mike Boryla as he described the home recipe pass play that sparked the National Football Conference's 23-20 victory over the American Conference in the Pro Bowl.

Boryla brought the play, known to the huddle only as the "Mike Special," south from Philadelphia where he was a sometime starter for the Eagles.

The "Mike Special" and the "Hart Special," also named for its creator, NFC quarterback Jim Hart of the St. Louis Cardinals, produced the two touchdowns that won the nationally televised game Monday night.

It was the second year in a row that a quarterback who wasn't even supposed to be in the Pro Bowl led the NFC to victory.

Last year it was James Harris of the Los Angeles Rams who entered the game in the final quarter to toss a pair of touchdown passes in a span of 1:24 for a 17-10 triumph.

But this year Harris was suffering from a sore arm.

So were Archie Manning of New Orleans and Steve Bartkowski of Atlanta. Minnesota's Fran Tarkenton — the first choice of conference officials — was scratched for injuries, and Roger Staubach of Dallas was battered out of commission by the Super Bowl.

That left only Boryla to come in during the fourth quarter and throw a pair of touchdown passes in a period that consumed only 2:01 on the clock for the NFC edge.

The substitute was narrowly outvoted for Most Valuable Player in the game over punt return specialist Billy Johnson.

"I hadn't thrown the football for three weeks until practice Tuesday," Boryla said. "I usually like to start throwing three weeks early, so I wasn't in real good shape."

But the shape looked fine as he lofted a 14-yard scoring strike to Terry Metcalf of the St. Louis Cardinals with 3:10 remaining. That put the underdog NFC within striking distance at 20-16. On the next drive Metcalf's teammate, Mel Gray, elbowed under a Boryla toss in a crowded end zone for the game's final score with just 1:09 left to play.

Boryla describes his special as "kind of a razzle dazzle play" in which two faked handoffs lure the linebackers up close while Metcalf sneaks into the secondary for a pass.

The "Hart Special" saw Gray's end zone area cleared by a crossing pattern between the split and tight ends.

"It completed the season," was the way Boryla summed up a game in which four Pro Bowl records were shattered.

Johnson broke the marks for longest punt returns and most yards gained in a game, both of which were held since 1971 by Mel Renfro of Dallas.

The 5-foot-9, 170-pound Houston Oilers set up the game's first score as he bobbled a John James punt early in the second quarter, picked it up and raced back the left sideline for a 55-yard gain. Jan Stenerud booted a 20-yard field goal six plays later.

In the fourth quarter, Johnson evaded five would-be tacklers and rambled 90 yards to the end zone to give the AFC a 20-9 lead that seemed insurmountable. That broke Renfro's record of 82 yards.

Johnson said later he owed his success to "the guys on the special team for throwing super blocks and to the Man upstairs — to the Lord."

Also shattered was a 57-yard record for longest pass play, set on a throw from Harris to Gray last year.

Dan Pastorini of Houston broke that mark when he found teammate Ken Burroughs for a 64-yard touchdown pass with only 12 seconds left in the half.

Lawrence McCutcheon of Los Angeles snapped the record for the longest run from scrimmage when he dodged 43 yards from his own 29 in the third quarter and fumbled into the arms of Harold Jackson, also of the Rams. The previous record was 30 yards, held since the 1975 Pro Bowl by O.J. Simpson.

Simpson was x-rayed following the game for a hand injury when he tried to protect his chin strap from a souvenir-hungry fan after the game. Doctors gave the Buffalo running back a clean bill of health.

Another record of sorts was set when Ray Guy became the first punter to bounce a kick off the Superdome instant replay screens — 90 feet above the artificial turf.

Guy says he aimed for the 20-by-40 foot color screens "just to see if I could do it."

The NFC seemed unable to move throughout the opening half as an AFC defense stifled the offense led by Hart of St. Louis.

Kansas City's Stenerud followed his opening field goal with a 35-yarder midway through the second quarter. The second kick was set up by Pastorini's 35-yard toss to Cliff Branch of Oakland.

The NFC threatened on the next series as Hart hit Detroit's Charlie Sanders for a gain of 38 yards to the AFC 43. But Pittsburgh's Jack Lambert picked off Hart's next toss on the 23 and Pastorini and Burroughs connected for their long score on the following play.

Jim Bakken of St. Louis put the NFC on the scoreboard with a 42-yard field goal at 6:59 into the third period.

Then a Ken Anderson passing attack stalled for the AFC, and Hart's squad took over the ball on their own 20 after a Ray Guy punt sailed into the end zone.

Minnesota's Chuck Foreman broke loose for 26 yards on the second play from scrimmage and then snagged a Hart pass for another first down. Four plays later Hart found Foreman in the end zone from four yards out. The extra point was blocked but the score was narrowed to 13-9 with 10 seconds left in the third quarter.

Johnson's record-setting runback seemed to put the game out of the NFC's reach early in the final period, but Boryla came in to engineer a 64-yard scoring drive.

Three former greats join grid Hall of Fame

RAY FLAHERTY

LEN FORD

JIM TAYLOR

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Jim Taylor, Ray Flaherty and the late Len Ford, integral parts of gridiron dynasties in four different decades, have been elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Flaherty coached the Washington Redskins through their most successful era in the late 1930s and early 1940s. Ford, a bruising 250-pounder who was converted from offensive to defensive end, helped the Cleveland Browns to divisional titles seven times in eight seasons in the 1950s.

The 40-year-old Taylor is the most familiar name to the current generation of pro football fans. The powerful fullback played a key role in transforming the Green Bay Packers from National Football League doormats to champions in the 1960s.

He retired as the No. 2 rusher and touchdown-scorer in National Football League history with 8,597 yards and 83 touchdowns and holds the record of five consecutive 1,000-yard ground-gaining seasons.

Taylor, Flaherty and Ford will be inducted into the Hall of Fame here July 24.

"Being named to the Hall of Fame is the ultimate goal of every professional football player," Taylor said in New Orleans, where he does public relations work for a shipbuilding firm. "But being named at the age of 40 means I'm young enough so that I, my family and friends can really appreciate the honor and enjoy it for a number of years."

Ford, who died of a heart attack in 1972 at the age of 46, launched his pro career in 1948 as a pass-catching end with the Los Angeles Dons of the old All-America Conference. When the AAC and NFL merged in 1950, he joined the Browns and became an all-pro almost every season until his retirement in 1957.

"He was probably the finest defensive end in the history of the club," said a Browns' spokesman.

Flaherty was an outstanding end in the early years of the NFL. In 11 seasons as the Redskins' coach, his teams compiled a record of 80-37-5. He capped his career by guiding the Skins to a 14-6 upset of the Chicago Bears in the 1942 NFL title game.

After serving in the Navy, Flaherty led the New York Yankees of the AAC to divisional crowns in 1946 and 1947 and later coached the Chicago Hornets.

"For a person who has been out of football as long as I have, I'm kind of tickled about it," the 72-year-old Flaherty said at his home in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, where he is semi-retired.

"I'm very pleased and happy about it. It's the one thing that everybody in football looks forward to. The award is especially nice because this is my 50th anniversary since I began in pro football. That's a long time ago. Not very many people can remember back that far to when I played or coached."

Warriors defeat Georgia Tech

McGuire flirts with defeat

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Coach Al McGuire, whose Marquette Warriors are 15-1 and ranked second in The Associated Press college basketball poll, wants to flirt with defeat.

"I hope we have some tight games before we go to the tournament, if we go, and I think we will," McGuire said Monday night after Marquette defeated Georgia Tech 55-44 for its 11th straight victory.

"In fact," the Warriors coach said, "it probably won't hurt us to lose one before the tournament. That takes the pressure off. That's why Indiana didn't win it last year."

The Indiana Hoosiers, top-ranked this season, were undefeated last year when they were upset in the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament. The Hoosiers ran their record to 17-0 Monday night with an easy 88-73 victory over Iowa.

Looking lethargic through most of the game, Marquette spurred out to a 17-4 lead, let it dwindle to 25-20 at halftime, then twice built up margins of 18 points in the second half before Georgia Tech rallied in the final three minutes.

Earl Tatum scored 14 points, mostly from the outside, and Butch Lee added 12 to pace Marquette.

The only other member of the Top Ten to see action Monday was ninth-ranked Tennessee. The Volunteers downed Louisiana State 105-92 behind Bernard King and Ernie Grunfeld, who combined for 57 points.

Indiana used its pressure defense and got 32 points from Scott May to turn in its 27th consecutive Big Ten triumph, matching the record set by Ohio State in 1960-62. It also was the Hoosiers' 47th straight regular season victory.

No. 14 St. John's needed an eight-point spurt — six by Glen Williams — to break a 59-59 deadlock and edge Manhattan 78-72. Cecil Rellford topped the Redmen with 16 points, while George Johnson scored 14 points, 10 of them in the second half.

Rich Adams' tip-in of a missed free throw with 38 seconds left gave Illinois a 76-75 upset over 15th-ranked Michigan. Two frantic shots by Michigan failed in the last 11 seconds before the Wolverines hit after time had run out. Illinois' top scorer was Nate Williams with 26 points, while Ricky Green had 18 for Michigan before fouling out.

Seven points in overtime by Mike Jones boosted 18th-ranked Cincinnati over Wichita State 92-85, and Russell Davis' 20-foot jumper with just five seconds remaining and Phil Thieneman's two free throws lifted 20th-ranked Virginia Tech past West Virginia 81-78.

In other action, it was Auburn 91, Kentucky 84 in overtime; Oral Roberts 84, Virginia Commonwealth 68; Tulane 101, The Citadel 85; Baylor 84, Arkansas 81; Texas Christian 73, Texas 70; Texas A&M 85, Rice 77; St. Louis 01, Drake 99 in overtime; Michigan State 66, Purdue 65, and Minnesota 82, Ohio State 69.

Next Blue Lion coach has tough act to follow

There's a big pair of shoes to fill at Washington Senior High School by next August when the Blue Lion football team takes the field for preseason practice.

With the resignation of 11-year veteran coach Maurice Pfeifer comes the problem of finding a replacement, and he is a tough act to follow.

Pfeifer's 68-37-5 record at Washington C.H. speaks for itself—he was a top notch prep coach. He has guided the Blue Lions to a perfect 10-0 season and two league championships. Washington Senior High School has enjoyed its most successful ten years of football during Pfeifer's reign.

Not only did he have a knack of turning 150-pound boys into hardnosed linemen, but he was also a very respected figure in his community. This is the type of man that school officials must replace.

The person who fills Pfeifer's chair will inherit a winning tradition, but he will also inherit a team that has been greatly depleted by the graduation of 26 seniors. This will leave 19 of the 22 starting positions open this September when the Blue Lions begin their 53rd football season.

This is not to say that Pfeifer got out while the getting was good. He has faced such situations in the past with the most memorable being the 1974 season when he lost all but four starters from a 10-0 team. Pfeifer turned that group of inexperienced players into a surprising 7-3 squad.

Not only will the new football coach have the tough job of building a league contender from last year's benchwarmers, but he will have the task of pleasing the fans, who are used to winning.

Blue Lion rooters may be expecting another successful grid season similar to the one in 1974 when a rebuilding year was turned into a winning year.

The last time the Washington C.H. fans saw a loser was in 1969, and that squad finished with a 4-5-1 record—a mark that many area schools could call a successful year.

Few times in the past ten years have Blue Lion fans left Gardner Park Stadium downhearted after suffering through a home-team loss. If such previously rare times become frequent in the future, the new coach will receive most of the blame whether it's mostly his fault or not.

They are a tough pair of shoes to fill and it promises to be a pressure-packed job. All we can do is offer the new coach the best of luck.

Circleville drops one notch

Three unbeatens top poll

By GEORGE STRODE
AP Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Canton McKinley, Delphos St. John and Gnadenhutten Indian Valley South are threatening to make The Associated Press' state high school basketball polls their personal domain the entire season.

The three unbeatens are out front again this week, marking the fourth straight time since the first ratings began early in January.

None of the trio shows signs of cracking with four more weeks of ratings remaining before the end of the regular season.

McKinley's Class AAA lead is 36 points over Barberton. St. John is 54 points up on Warsaw River View in Class AA. And Indian Valley South boasts a 62-point margin over No. 2 Morral Ridgedale in Class A.

McKinley is 14-0 this winter and undefeated in its last 31 regular season games. St. John is 12-0 and Indian Valley South 13-0.

The same cast makes up the three Top Tens this week with three exceptions.

Newcomer Springfield South (11-2) moved into No. 10 in Class AAA. There were no new faces among the Class AA elite, but newcomers Lordstown (13-0) and Oak Hill (11-1) shared 10th place among the Class A powers.

In Class AAA, Canton Timken and Cleveland St. Ignatius made the biggest moves. Timken (13-1) went from seventh to fifth on the strength of a 114-54 beating of Western Reserve Academy. St. Ignatius, unbeaten in 13 tests, surged from 10th to seventh.

Among the large schools, Bellefontaine was fourth, Columbus Linden-McKinley sixth, Middletown eighth and Cleveland Heights ninth.

In Class AA, Lorain Catholic held onto fourth, followed by Wellsville, Ironton, Circleville, Wheelersburg, Magnolia Sandy Valley and Columbus St. Charles.

Arcanum jumped one notch to fourth in Class A, Sandusky St. Mary was fifth, St. Henry sixth, New Riegel seventh, Maria Stein Marion eighth and Sebring ninth.

Sports briefs

'Golden Age' seen by Cincinnati Reds

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Golden Age of Sports is now as far as the Cincinnati Reds are concerned.

The Reds' success during the six years of this decade in winning four Western Division titles, three National League championships and a world championship, has literally lined their pockets with gold.

The players who have been with the club throughout this period have averaged nearly $10,000 per year, a total of $56,071.57, in addition to their regular salaries as a reward for their success.

Tim Tam winner of Latonia feature

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP) — Crafty Tim Tam won the long $3,700 "Silver Grove" handicap at Latonia Monday night by two lengths covering the mile and 1-16th in 1:50 4-5.

The winner paid $12.40, $8.20 and $6. Jack Burton placed, paying $6.60 and $4.60, and Ichabod was third, paying $5.60.

The 3-12 daily double of Cindy's Bandit and Sir Rulers Girl paid $139. Attendance was 3,105.

IHL All-Star clash scheduled tonight

MUSKEGON, Mich. (AP) — The annual International Hockey League All-Star game will be played tonight at Muskegon.

Don Perry of the Saginaw Gears will coach the North Division team against the South Division players, coached by Ivan Prediger.

Rightwinger Clyde Simon of the Flint Generals was added to the North team Monday when Dennis Desrosiers of Saginaw was sidelined with a hip injury.

Golden State beats Milwaukee, 115-104

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Rick Barry is upset because he's on another scoring spree, which is about the only thing troubling the runaway Golden State Warriors.

"I'm concerned. I shouldn't have to score that much," Barry said after collecting 28 points Tuesday night to help the National Basketball Association's defending champions down Milwaukee 115-104 and open an 11½ game lead in the Pacific Division.

The game was the only one scheduled.

ABA All-Star tilt scheduled tonight

DENVER (AP) — While coaches Larry Brown and Kevin Loughery agree that the game plan for tonight's American Basketball Association All-Star contest is to win, Commissioner

Dave DeBusschere and the league's Board of Trustees are trying to agree on a game plan for the future of the ABA.

"The All-Star Game is fun and a time to relax, but there is no question that we're going out there to win," said Brown, who will match his first-place Denver Nuggets against a 12-man team of all-stars coached by Loughery.

While Brown goes with his starting lineup that has opened a 3½-game lead over second-place New York — forwards David Thompson and Bobby Jones, center Dan Issel and guards Chuck Williams and Ralph Simpson — the all-stars will open with forwards Julius Erving of New York and Billy Knight of Indiana, center Artis Gilmore of Kentucky and guards James Silas of San Antonio and Brian Taylor of New York.

For reserves, Loughery has forwards Maurice Lucas of Kentucky, Marvin Barnes of St. Louis and Larry Kenon of San Antonio, center Billy Paultz of San Antonio and guards Ron Boone of St. Louis, George Gervin of San Antonio and Don Buse of Indiana.

Both teams worked out for about an hour Monday, and it was disclosed that Bobby Jones, who had been a doubtful starter because of recent chest problems, had been declared physically healthy after undergoing tests.

Opening lead - jack of clubs.

The elimination play is declarer's best bet in many situations, but resourceful defenders can sometimes find suitable countermeasures.

For example, consider this deal where West leads a club against four hearts. Declarer sees that he must lose two spades, come what may, so the outcome rests entirely on limiting himself to one diamond loser.

Since it is obviously better to force the defenders to lead diamonds than to initiate the suit himself, South embarks on an elimination play that will leave the defense no real choice but to lead the suit.

After winning the jack of clubs and drawing two rounds of trumps, South cashes his remaining clubs before exiting with a spade. East takes his A-K and, in order to avoid yielding a ruff and discard, he returns a diamond.

If he makes the mistake of leading the ace, South comes home free. Let's therefore assume that East returns a low diamond. Declarer puts on the jack and now it is West who must make the right play to beat the contract.

If West covers with the queen, South can make the contract by winning with the king and returning a low diamond towards his ten. His only losers in that case would be two spades and a diamond.

However, West should realize that covering the jack of diamonds with the queen may very well hand declarer the contract. West must assume that East has the ace, as the contract is otherwise unbeatable. Once West makes this assumption, he should duck the jack.

This play finishes South. He must lose two diamond tricks and go down one. The elimination play fails against proper defense.

Speaking of Your Health... Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Surgery for a Broken Jaw?

After an automobile injury, it was found that I had a fracture of the jaw. I can't understand why it was allowed to heal by itself rather than to have it set. Now the insurance company just dismisses my injury as if nothing happened.

Mr. B.P., Minn.

Dear Mr. P.: There are many medical and legal implications to your problem. From the medical point of view, it is important for you to understand that not all fractures of the jaw need to be "set" by an operation.

Frequently, the fragments of the broken bone are in good position and in normal alignment. When this occurs, the jaw may be put at rest in a variety of ways. Then, the bones heal without any alteration of function.

If a fracture of a jaw affects the jaw joint and interferes with its movement, surgery may be necessary.

When the alignment of the teeth and the bite are altered by a fracture then special wiring techniques are also used to put the bone in its normal position.

Fortunately, you were spared such complications and the need for surgery.

The fact that an operation was not needed should not in any way alter the legal and insurance obligations associated with such an injury.

I have a swelling in my neck. This has been growing larger.

The doctors say it is a goiter and should be removed. If I decide not to have an operation can this growth become cancerous?

Mrs. N.K., Iowa

Dear Mrs. K.: The condition you describe is probably a "colloid" goiter. It occurs with moderate frequency to people who live in areas where there is little natural iodine in the water.

When iodine is added to salt and to water there is a marked reduction in the incidence of goiter.

Very rarely is there any cancerous change in a colloid goiter. Yet such a possibility does exist. Consequently, it strikes me as being unwise not to take your doctor's advice.

The surgical removal of a colloid goiter is not a complicated operation. It can be performed safely and will eradicate once and for all the unnecessary fears you speak of.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH... When called upon the help a victim of an accident, or in any other emergency situation, it is better to do too little than too much. Everyone should be trained at an early age in the fundamentals of first aid.

THE BETTER HALF By Barnes

NOTICE OF SALE OF BONDS

Sealed proposals will be received by the undersigned, the Village Clerk of the Village of Jeffersonville, County of Fayette, Ohio, at the office of said village clerk in the Municipal Building, North Main Street, Jeffersonville, Ohio 43128, until 12:00 o'clock noon, on the then prevailing standard time in Ohio, on February 5, 1976, at which place and time the bids will be publicly opened and read, for the purchase of Special Assessment Water Main Extensions Bonds, of said village, in the principal amount of $11,981.44, dated February 1, 1976, maturing from 1 to 12, both inclusive, of the denomination of $1,000 each, except bond No. 1 of the denomination of $981.44, and bearing interest at the rate of six and one-half per centum (6 1/2 per cent) per annum, payable December 1, 1976, and semiannually thereafter on June 1 and December 1 of each year and maturing in the amount of $4,000 on December 1 of each year from 1977 to 1979, inclusive, except that $3,981.44 matures in 1977.

Anyone desiring to do so may present a bid or bids for said bonds based upon their bearing a different rate of interest from that hereinbefore specified, provided that where a fractional interest rate is bid, such fraction shall be one-eighth of one per centum or a multiple thereof.

Unless paid from other sources, both principal and interest are payable from limited taxes at The Fayette County Bank, Jeffersonville, Ohio, without deduction for exchange, collection or service charges.

These general obligation special assessment bonds of the village are issued for the purpose of paying part of the cost of improving certain property in the Village of Jeffersonville, Ohio, as described in Resolution No. 123, passed by council of the village on June 12, 1967, and in Resolution No. 137, passed by the council of the village on June 6, 1968, by constructing therein water main extensions, under authority of the general laws of the State of Ohio pertaining to the Uniform Bond Law of the Ohio Revised Code, and pursuant to Ordinance No. 76-1, duly passed by council of said village on January 8, 1976.

These bonds will be sold to the bidder offering to purchase the bonds at the lowest net interest cost to the village, such cost to be determined by deducting the total amount of any premium offered from the aggregate amount of interest payable upon all the bonds from February 1, 1976, until their respective dates of maturity. No bid for less than par plus accrued interest will be entertained and the right is reserved to reject any and all bids.

All bids must be accompanied by cash, a bank cashier's or official's check, a certified check or a combination thereof, not drawn upon or certified by a bidder, payable to the village, equal to at least one per centum of the amount of the bonds being sold, upon condition that if the bid is accepted, the fiscal officer will deliver the bonds to the successful bidder within thirty (30) days of the date of the award, with the usual delivery papers, non-arbitrage certificate, and a complete, certified transcript of the proceedings, showing the bonds to have been legally issued, and the bidder will receive and pay for such bonds as may be issued as above set forth, said cash or check or combination thereof to be retained by the village as full and complete liquidated damages and cashed only if said condition is not fulfilled; or said cash or check or combination thereof to be returned promptly at the request of the successful bidder if the bonds and transcript are not delivered within the time specified herein.

No conditional bids will be received.

The approving opinion of Peck, Shaffer & Williams, bond attorneys of Cincinnati, Ohio will be furnished to the successful bidder at his expense as a term of sale. The village will pay for the printing of the bonds, which shall have printed thereon the text of the legal approving opinion of the village.

It is anticipated that CUSIP identification numbers will be printed on these bonds, but neither the failure to print such number on any bond nor any error with respect thereto shall constitute cause for a failure or refusal by the purchaser thereof to accept delivery or pay for said bonds in accordance with the terms of the purchase contract. All expenses in relation to the printing of CUSIP numbers on said bonds shall be paid for by said village, provided, however, that the CUSIP Service Bureau charge for the assignment of said numbers shall be the responsibility of and shall be paid for by the purchaser.

The bonds will be delivered by the village for payment without charge within the State of Ohio to the purchaser or to a bank designated by the purchaser. The expense of such delivery will not be considered in determining the highest bidder. Delivery at any other place shall be at the request of the purchaser and at his expense.

Payment for the bonds shall be made to the village in immediate or Federal Reserve funds on the date of delivery.

The bids will be considered and acted upon at a meeting of council of said village to be held February 5, 1976, or within three (3) days thereafter.

Bids should be sealed and endorsed: "BID FOR SPECIAL ASSESSMENT BONDS".

By Order of Council of the Village of Jeffersonville, Ohio

In Focus by Charlie Pensyl

There's a sad-sack character that I know (you know him too), who has the idea that one more gadget is all it's going to take to make him a photographer. This tragic figure has an adequate camera, a few tons of accessories, gadgets, and assorted paraphernalia, and about as much skill in the use of his equipment as Tiny Tim would show against the Steelers' front four. Now this character - let's call him Wilbur - can sling the jargon to the point that a tyro might be snowed at first. But Wilbur has the notion that pictures are made by cameras and equipment. That's not the case. Pictures are made by photographers. People make the pix; the camera is the tool.

Now a camera in the hands of a creative artist will make beautiful pictures, but virtuosity with the camera, as with a violin or a horn, comes slowly and involves study and practice. Wilbur can't be bothered with that kind of stuff. In fact, words like "study" and "practice" are quite offensive to his sensitive psyche. Of the many fine cameras on the market today, far too many wind up in the hands of Wilburs and will never be used to fulfill the purpose for which they were designed, namely making good photos. To me that's sad.

But fortunately there are many cameras in the hands of those other guys. Yep, there are lots of people who understand the challenge of the photographic art and read, study, practice, and enroll in photographic classes. Here at the shop we enjoy helping people choose the photographic books that will best help them with their problem. We get a great kick from watching the development of the tyro as he becomes a photographer at our photo classes at CKFN. Photography can be a truly rewarding hobby. But remember that whether you're a photographer or not has nothing to do with the equipment you own: it's determined by your synapses.

CKFN classes will be starting very shortly and if you're interested in developing your hobby come in and get the story.

And one other thing. If you're one of those who've been wanting to see the film, WORLD WITHOUT CANCER, it will be shown next Tuesday, that's February 3, at 7:30, here at the camera shop. And you are more than welcome.

Involving elderly man

Two youths charged in robbery incident

Two Milledgeville youths have been charged with the robbery of an elderly Milledgeville man by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department.

Fayette County Sheriff Donald L. Thompson reported today Henry Lawson, 90, had been seated in a chair in the living room of his home at 10:30 p.m. Jan. 5 when the boys entered through a rear door and threw a blanket over him. They then grabbed a pair of Lawson's pants and removed his wallet, which contained an undisclosed amount of money and then fled. Deputies recovered the wallet and money through their investigation which led to the boys' arrest. Both have been released to the custody of their parents.

The sheriff's department also reported the arrest of a shoplifter and offense incidents involving burglary, larceny and vandalism today. Washington C. H. police reported a larceny and a case involving property destruction.

Steve Miller, 22, Rt. 2, was arrested at 3 p.m. Monday by sheriff's deputies and charged with petty theft through shoplifting. Miller allegedly stole a thickness gauge valued at $1.07 from the Seaway store, CCC-Highway-W. He is incarcerated in the county jail in lieu of $1,000 bond.

The Oscar Glass residence in Bloomingburg was entered sometime between 4:50 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. Monday by someone who broke the glass out of an entrance door. A microwave oven valued at $250 and a cassette recorder valued at $45 were stolen. Investigation by sheriff's deputies is underway.

A 12-volt battery valued at $25 was stolen from an auto owned by Michael Young, Jeffersonville, sometime between 3:30 p.m. and 9 p.m. Monday while the auto was parked at Bowland Lanes, CCC-Highway-W, deputies reported.

A tire and rim valued at $45 were stolen from the trunk of Leroy Farris' (901 Leslie Trace Court) car at 11:45 p.m. Friday while the car was parked in the Jaycee clubhouse parking lot, CCC-Highway-W. Deputies stated Farris had been loading items in his trunk and had left it for a few minutes.

The left rear window of a car belonging to Theresa McCarry, West Jefferson, was broken out sometime between 11:30 p.m. Saturday and 2:30 a.m. Sunday while parked behind the Pub Bar in Jeffersonville. Sheriff's deputies listed damage at $30 and are investigating.

Maybe "Get Away" is a poor choice of names for a car battery valued at $40, because that's exactly what it did at the Howard H. Thompson residence, 231 W. Elm St., sometime last week. Washington C. H. police reported the battery was stolen from Thompson's auto parked at the rear of his home. The "Get Away" battery got away, the thieves got away and police are trying to get them both back.

Two windows were broken at the McDonald and Sons, Inc., warehouse at 106 W. Paint St., sometime between Jan. 16 and Jan. 23. Police estimated damage at $75.

Seven auto mishaps checked by officers

Four accidents were investigated by Washington C.H. police Monday and three by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department. Although two of those traffic mishaps occurred during the power failure which knocked out all the traffic lights in the city, this was not a contributing factor, according to police. Officers complimented the driving public, stating the care and safety exhibited by drivers during the blackout was excellent.

POLICE
MONDAY, 4:45 p.m. - An unidentified driver struck a car owned by Thelma E. Barnett, 708 Peabody Ave., while her auto was parked in front of 732 E. Market St. Damage was moderate and police are seeking the person responsible.

4:35 p.m. - Cars driven by James K. Massie, 21, of 529 1/2 Third St., and Ronald D. Mock, 28, Parrott-Station Road, collided at the intersection of Vine and Third streets. Police cited Massie for running the stop sign at the intersection. Damage was severe to his car which suffered a ruptured gas tank and resulted in the Washington C.H. Fire Department being dispatched to the location in case of fire. There was no fire, but firefighters stood by. Damage to the Mock auto was moderate.

1:40 p.m. - A rear-end collision at the intersection of Fayette and Delaware streets involved a truck driven by Bret T. Wilson, 16, of 525 Damon Drive, and a car driven by Daniel M. Rodgers, 17, of 1120 N. North St. Rodgers was charged with failure to maintain an assured clear distance ahead. Police said his brakes had locked up causing him to slide on wet pavement and hit Wilson's truck.

An unidentified driver backed into the front end of a car belonging to Joan M. Mess, 23, of 219 Draper St., sometime Monday at the intersection of Draper Street and Clinton Avenue. Damage was minor.

SHERIFF
MONDAY, 6:30 p.m. - A car driven by William J. Fannin Jr., 17, of 5284 Ohio 41, traveled off Ohio 41, one and three-tenths of a mile north of Upper Jamestown Road and struck a fence belonging to Willis Ray, of South Solon. Damage to Fannin's car was estimated as moderate and sheriff's deputies cited him for failing to drive on the right half of the roadway.

1:25 p.m. - A car driven by Frank H. Sprague, 78, South Charleston, rolled backwards into a Dayton Power and Light Co. utility pole on Ohio 41-N, near the Ohio 734 intersection. Deputies stated his car had stalled and estimated damage as minor.

1:15 p.m. - A car driven by Goldie E. Colan, 69, of 410 Peddicord Ave., failed to negotiate a left curve on Ohio 41, seven-tenths of a mile north of Hickory Lane and skidded on wet pavement striking an Ohio Bell Telephone Co. pole and a fence owned by Jess Crago, Rt. 3. Ms. Colan claimed injury from the mishap, but was not treated according to deputies. Her auto was moderately damaged.

Prayer breakfast draws 48 persons

The third teen prayer breakfast of the new year drew 48 persons Tuesday morning at the South Side Church of Christ.

"Three Brief Prayers" was the topic for the meditation time led by the Rev. Charles J. Richmond. Melanie McArthur, a freshman at Washington Senior High School, and Linda Hollingsworth, a senior at Washington Senior High School, led the singing. Marty Huffman, a freshman at Washington Senior High School, offered prayer.

After breakfast, Becky Ragland, a sophomore at Washington Senior High School, gave the devotional on, "Being Yourself." Jane Henry, a sophomore at Washington Senior High School, dismissed the session with prayer.

The next prayer breakfast will be Tuesday, February 3, at 6:45 a.m. All teens, grades nine through twelve, are welcome.

Arrests

POLICE
MONDAY - Daniel M. Rodgers, 17, of 1120 N. North St., failure to maintain an assured clear distance ahead. James K. Massie, 21, of 529 1/2 Third St., failure to obey traffic sign.

PATROL
TUESDAY - Michael F. Cahill, 17, Euclid, speeding.

SHERIFF

"FULL SERVICE SHOP"

Good, Better, Best

Good . . . dry hair can be cut to your particular style but its stiffness limits the cleanness of the cutting.
Better . . . hair that has been dampened will stretch slightly, and allow us to style to suit your wants.
Best . . . styling your hair after shampooing that opens the hair cells, creates the neatest cut.
Hair that has been shampooed and cut while still wet will stretch up to 1/2 inch allowing the hair to be combed and cut evenly. This styling gives you a better "haircut" that looks good when you leave the shop and stays good looking for days afterwards. Ask us about hairstyling for you.
